Three Pounds of Messy Substance

"The human brain is three pounds of messy substance shut in a dark, warm place—a pinkish-gray mass, moist and rubbery to the touch, about the size of a football. Shock-absorbing fluid cushions it against bumps, sharp blows and other impacts. It is wrapped in three membranes, including an extra-tough outer envelope, and sets snugly in a crate of bone..." (So says John Pfeiffer in a wonderful story, "The Human Brain.")

"Perched like a flower on top of a slender stalk" (which in a 6-foot man is not quite a yard long), this mysterious structure "heard" the biggest of the A-bomb blasts at the Nevada test site.

The brain's messengers in thousands of eyes saw the flash—which lighted the skies as far as 800 miles away.

In Touch
"The brain," writes Pfeiffer, "keeps in constant touch with the flow of events. It is stirred by lights, sounds, odors and other disturbances. Each sensation produces electrical impulses in nerves leading to the brain."

"Shocks" which stream into higher nerve centers and cause cell after cell to fire a series of chain reactions.

The blast and the flash at Yucca Flats set all our minds to work. Impulse after impulse caused cells to begin chain reactions.

But there was no answer. The miracle of the brain was frustrated.

The skies were lighted in 11 Western states.

In distant Salt Lake, Utah, a concrete wall was cracked.

The atomic cloud reared itself miles in the sky, uncoiled in the shape of a striking cobra, and drifted off into invisible mists, particles, vapors.

All this the brain "knew."

"The brain's informers are sense organs, sentinels located at strategic points throughout the body. Imbedded in the skin are some 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 structures sensitive to pain; 500,000 touch or pressure detectors; more than 200,000 temperature detectors. These tiny organs—plus the ears, eyes, nose and tongue—are some of your windows to the outside world. . . . Reports about the state of things inside your body come from other built-in sense organs which give rise to muscular tension, hunger, thirst, nausea."

All these went to work when the blast was heard in the Nevada desert and the skies were lit with its light — and when the sand boiled and cooked, fusing itself into weird shapes of glass.

Messages
All the built-in receiving sets began to report to the brain, "I'm scared . . . nauseated, tense. . . ."

This "three pounds of messy substance" (man really has two brains, the new and the old) possesses 31 nerves passing off each side of the spinal cord, through special windows in the vertebrae, like roads that feed traffic in and out of superhighways. In addition, there are a dozen pairs of cranial nerves which arise from the brainstem in the skull. . . . 86 nerves connecting the brain and the body. They have myriad fibers which reach into every nook and cranny of the body. . . . In the brain their cells form masses of twisted fibers called "the cerebral jungle."

"As you read this sentence," writes Pfeiffer, in the early pages of his book, "fibers in your head are swaying like seaweed swept by tides . . . tentacles of protoplasm are slowly moving forward, retreating, swelling, and shrinking, waving from side to side. . . ."

Reading about the A-blast one's "cerebral jungle" must indeed be a weird and awesome spectacle if one could but see it under an electron microscope.

The mind is stirred mightily . . . this we know.

All its informers, its built-in radar system, go madly to work. . . . Some minds crack under the strain of not knowing the answer.

But there is no ready answer. Man's brain, nonetheless, must find one. It must come from within. It lies not in shelters dug; not in drills wherein one learns to hide under desks or tables or run frantically down basement steps.

There is no defense—save as man conquers his spirit and faith.

Charles Redwine, Political Leader 50 Years, Is Dead

Charles D. Redwine, 70, political leader in Georgia for nearly 50 years and the state's first "billion-dollar" revenue commissioner, died Tuesday afternoon in a private hospital.

Mr. Redwine had been a patient at St. Joseph's Infirmary since Feb. 25. Doctors said the former commissioner suffered colitis, which was described as an "inflammation of the colon resulting from an antibiotic drug used to relieve a urinary infection."

REGRET
Expressing regret at Mr. Redwine's passing, former Gov. Herman Talmadge said:

"Charles D. Redwine was a warm friend of my family for more than a quarter century. He was a man of sterling character, unimpeachable integrity and blunt, direct honesty."

"I was happy to appoint him revenue commissioner and he made the best in the state's history. Fayette County and citizens in all walks of life will mourn him and miss him."

Gov. Griffin also voiced regret at Mr. Redwine's death.

"He was a splendid public servant and a great Georgian," the governor said. "He had served his people in the Legislature for over 40 years. He was honest, able and God-fearing."

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. Thursday in the Fayetteville Methodist Church. Bishop Arthur J. Moore of Atlanta, the Rev. Hamby Barton Jr. of Oxford and the Rev. Robert Taylor of Fayetteville will officiate. Burial will be in the Fayetteville Cemetery.

A SUCCESS STORY
Charles D. Redwine's life was the story of a poor farm boy who rose not only to wealth and political influence but also to a position of respect as one of Georgia's most trusted servants.

"Mr. Charlie," or "Uncle Charlie," as he was variously called with a great deal of affection, earned a reputation during his

State Blasts New Rips in Fuller Alibi

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 8.—The state ripped fresh holes in the defendant's alibi and left the defense with the task of trying to patch them up today at Albert Fuller's trial for first-degree murder in the Phenix City slaying of vice crusader Albert L. Patterson.

Prosecuting attorneys turned abruptly from character testimony about the reputations of previous witnesses as the trial entered its fourth week. They introduced evidence that:

1. An alibi witness who swore Fuller, former deputy sheriff at Phenix City, was in the county jail at the time Patterson was murdered, once told an acquaintance he knew nothing about the defendants' whereabouts.

2. Fuller was seen on a downtown street at the time he said he was at home on the night Patterson was murdered last June 18.

3. Former Sheriff Ralph Mathews, another alibi witness, told conflicting stories about the time he left home before going to the jail the night of the murder.

4. At least two law enforcement officers had keys to the jail in addition to those kept by the jailer. Fuller had said there were no others.

The surprise testimony came near the close of the state's presentation of rebuttal evidence. It

Griffin Was Pressured Into Veto Of School Study, Millican Claims

Gov. Griffin Tuesday vetoed a proposed study of Atlanta and Fulton County schools, but signed a bill giving Atlanta schools approximately one million dollars in additional revenue.

Fulton legislators who asked for the study immediately expressed disappointment at the governor's action and at least one hinted he knew definitely of "pressure" that had been brought to bear against the school study.

Fulton Sen. G. Everett Millican, Griffin's speaker pro tem in the state Senate, said: "The idea of the governor vetoing that resolution on the grounds that it was unconstitutional in my opinion is an absolute joke."

Millican said he had definite in-

Flier Hints Margaret Has Him in a Tailspin

By WILLIAM ANDERSON

BRUSSELS, March 8 (AP)—Group Capt. Peter Townsend sidestepped comment today on rumors linking him with Princess Margaret, explaining that "it involves more people than myself."

But the handsome divorced airman came close to admitting, in a sidewalk interview, that such a romance had, indeed, existed despite repeated denials in London's official circles.

FOR HER GOOD
"I came to Brussels because the position was becoming impossible for both of us and especially for her," Townsend said.

He did not say whether the "impossible" position resulted from a romance or from gossip newspaper headlines.

Townsend was dispatched from his post as a royal courier to become air attaché in Brussels two years ago when rumors of a romantic interest in Margaret first became widespread.

The rumors have revived since the return of the princess from her Caribbean tour.

"I cannot remember if I was sent here or asked to be posted myself," the 40-year-old Townsend said with a grin.

STOPS DODGING
For two years Townsend dodged newsmen and Belgians called him the "loneliest diplomat in Brussels."

(In London, Princess Margaret was welcomed home officially from her Caribbean tour.

Her report on the tour, given at a luncheon at the ornate mansion house of Lord Mayor Sir Seymour Howard, was broadcast to the nation.

(Apparently undisturbed by rumors she plans to marry Townsend, the Princess, 24, dropped no hint of the secrets of her heart.)

Atomic Weapons Would Retaliate, Dulles Tells Reds

Panel Gets $28 Million School Plea

By M. L. ST. JOHN

The State Problems Study Committee Wednesday will be asked to find 28 million dollars in new money for common schools for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1955.

The State Department of Education, first agency to appear before the study group, will outline needs for additional funds at the hearing in the House chamber.

Dr. Claude Purcell, assistant state school superintendent, said 15 million dollars will be needed to prevent curtailment of the present school program when the state surplus expires in October. An additional 13 million dollars will be necessary to care for 30,000 children entering school and to expand educational opportunities.

ANNUAL INCREASE
After the first year, the common schools will need an increase of 10 million dollars annually for the succeeding three years, Purcell said.

State School Supt. M. D. Collins and Purcell will discuss the operations and needs of the schools at the hearing.

The department will present eight of its division heads to answer questions of the study committee concerning present operations.

Gov. Griffin says Georgia to share in road-building program. Page 7.

Division heads who will be ready to appear before the study group are L. M. Lester, in charge of instruction; C. S. Hubbard, textbooks; George Martin, vocational education; Paul Barrett, schools for the deaf and blind; W. E. Pafford, teacher allotment; Allen Smith, buildings; Joe DeFoor, transportation, and A. W. Blackburn, war surplus material.

The appropriations law under which the state is operating provides 89 million dollars for common schools. However, the Budget Commission has made special allocations from surplus funds to bring the budget up to 104 million dollars in state money. Instead of dropping back to 89 million dollars next fiscal year, the department wants a budget of 117 million dollars.

Kittenish 'Burglar' Gives Cops a Howl

It wasn't a case of a kitten on the keys. But a symphony of sound developed just the same early Tuesday when a burglar alarm flashed on at police headquarters.

Police cars with red lights blinking and sirens screaming converged on a West Fair street liquor store where the alarm originated.

With guns at the ready, the officers searched carefully over the premises without discovering a single clue as to why the alarm had flashed on.

Just as they were about to depart, a faint sound attracted their attention. They stood still to listen.

"Me-ow," the noise grew into a howl.

Stocks Dive After a Cash Buying Plea

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP)—The stock market broke sharply today following testimony before the Senate Banking Committee that stock buying ought to be put on a cash basis, that there is too much speculation.

However, Chairman Fulbright (D-Ark.) of the committee said of the market drop:

"I think it has no connection whatever with the study being made by this committee. I can't imagine how there would be any connection."

HARVARD PROFESSOR
Some New York brokers attributed the selloff in the market to testimony today by John Kenneth Galbraith, professor of economics at Harvard University, who urged "strongest precautionary measures" to prevent a repetition of the disastrous market crash of 1929.

While saying there is too much speculation, Galbraith added there are some "formidable safeguards" against a 1929-type crash.

A reporter referred to Galbraith's testimony as "gloomy," but Fulbright said:

"It wasn't a gloomy statement. He only said we should be cautious. We should be cautious when we are walking across the street."

Warns China Force Will Meet Force

By ELIE ABEL

New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution
WASHINGTON, March 8.—Secretary of State Dulles warned Communist China tonight that the United States is no "paper tiger."

The tiger analogy is a favorite of Communist propagandists, who depict the United States as snarling bravely enough but in the end backing away from a fight. Dulles suggested that the American tiger still has powerful teeth and claws.

GIVES NOTICE
He put Peiping on notice that a resort to force would be countered by "the greater force that we possess."

The United States, he said, has "new and powerful weapons of precision, which can utterly destroy military targets without endangering unrelated civilian centers." The secretary of state evidently was referring to nuclear weapons in the tactical category, which can be fired from cannon or dropped from fighter-bomber planes on the battlefield, rather than weapons of mass destruction such as the city-destroying hydrogen bomb.

But Dulles, in a broadcast report to the nation, again left shadowy the precise response of the United States to an attack on Quemoy and the Matsu Islands, off the South China coast.

IKE'S DECISION
President Eisenhower will decide that question, he said, "in the light of his judgment as to the over-all value of certain coastal positions to the defense of Formosa, and the cost of holding those positions."

Secretary of Defense Wilson also deferred to Eisenhower when asked at his press conference this afternoon whether the United States

Britain Requests Chiang Evacuate Quemoy, Matsu

LONDON, March 8 (AP)—Britain today publicly called upon Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to evacuate the Nationalist-held islands of Quemoy and Matsu in the Formosa Strait as an essential step toward a Far Eastern settlement.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who urged the step in the House of Commons, coupled it with a call to the Chinese Communists to make the move easier by giving "some indication" they will renounce the use of force in the Formosan crisis.

These two steps, he said, would pave the way for the world powers to consider the problem of Red China's admission to the United Nations.

Sen. Johnson Vows Speedy Tax Action

Rallying Democrats; Wants To Go Along With Rayburn

By WILLIAM S. WHITE

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The Senate Democratic hierarchy promised President Eisenhower today a quick showdown on the tax fight.

Sen. Johnson of Texas, Democratic floor leader, arranged to bring the issue to the floor Thursday and to seek a decisive vote by next midweek.

He disavowed any Democratic intention to seek delay.

Johnson, though for many days out of action from a surgical operation still requiring him to wear a steel backbrace, returned to take personal command of the struggle with two purposes:

To come to the assistance of Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, who narrowly put a $20 per person income tax reduction through that chamber over the President's vehement objections.

To find a means by which the substance of Rayburn's attempt could be preserved without alienating the Senate's fiscal conservatives among the Democrats.

DECISIVE BALLOTS

The Senate Finance Committee by a vote of 9 to 6 has refused to approve the Rayburn plan. The decisive negative ballots were cast there by the committee's Democratic chairman, Sen. Byrd of Virginia, and his senior Democratic associate, Sen. George of Georgia.

The question now, of course, is what the Senate itself is to do—whether to go all the way, part of the way or none of the way with the Democratic House and with the Democratic National Committee, which supported Rayburn's move.

Tonight, Johnson and his associates had settled on a policy of going along with Rayburn for some form of tax reduction in spite of the administration's insistent opposition. They did not relish the notion, however, of going so far as Rayburn had gone.

HUNTING FORMULA

A group of Democratic tax experts accordingly was at work trying to devise a suitable formula. At the same time, revisions were being made in the yet unpublished recommendations of the six Democratic members of the finance committee who had wanted to stand with Rayburn without qualification.

While no alternative had been firmly adopted, the outlook was for a proposed amendment to give tax relief only to the lower income brackets.

The ultimate outcome, in the words of one powerful Senate Democrat, "stands on the thin edge of a dime." The Republicans are very nearly solidly lined up against a $20 reduction, though some strong compromise admittedly would attract some Republican defections.

PREDICTS REJECTION

The Republican Senate leader, Sen. Knowland of California, asserted today after leaving the White House that in its present form the House bill would be defeated "by a very substantial margin" in the Senate. He predicted a rejection of any compromise as well.

The House version would grant a $20 reduction to each taxpayer and for each of his dependents regardless of the amount of income involved.

Thus if a man with a wife and three children found that his 1955 income tax figured out at $500, he would actually pay only $400.

The administration's special difficulty is both one of substance and of timing.

The House reduction was added to a bill, otherwise strongly supported by the President, to halt presently scheduled falls in the rates of excise (luxury) and corporation taxes that would amount to about $3,000,000,000 a year without congressional action, these reductions will take effect on April 1.

Feel Under Weather? Take Heart: You're in Bed With Many a VIP

By The Associated Press

If the waning winter finds you with a cold, you've got some big-name company.

President Eisenhower, for instance. He stayed away from his White House office for a while Tuesday because of "slight symptoms," but later decided to keep most of his engagements.

Mrs. Eisenhower is ill with flu and confined to bed.

In London, Prime Minister Churchill got a slight cold, or chill as the British call it. He canceled an appearance at the Lord Mayor's luncheon welcoming Princess Margaret home from her Caribbean tour.

In Bonn, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer came down with a slight case of flu. His doctor told him to stay at home for three days.

And in Munich, a cold kept Iran's touring Shah, Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, from a planned visit to Germany's highest mountain, the 7,922-foot Zugspitze in the Bavarian Alps.

Among others under the weather is Aneurin Bevan, the leftist British Laborite, who has the flu.

Cincinnati Crest of 61 Feet Expected for Flooding Ohio

CINCINNATI, Ohio, March 8 (AP)—The crest of the flooding Ohio River rolled downstream tonight, leaving thousands temporarily homeless and causing millions of dollars in damage.

Some 2,000 families have been evacuated in Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky and Indiana as the river and its tributaries spilled out of their banks.

Col. J. L. Persons of the Army engineers here said total damage from the flood will reach "several million dollars." He qualified the estimate, however, pointing out there is "nothing like a catastrophe." He said there was "a good deal of scattered damage."

A revised forecast said the Ohio will hit a 61.5-foot crest here early Thursday, then begin to recede. The river crested at Ashland, Ky., 130 miles up river from here, today, 12.3 feet above flood stage.

Red Cross officials, who termed the four-state flood "a disaster," said Catlettsburg, Ky., appeared the hardest-hit community in the flood area. Two thirds of the House Farm Group Asks Rigid Props' Restoration

Parity Fight Renewal Shapes Up; Committee Vote Cuts Party Lines

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP)—Another farm fight brewed today in the House, where the Agriculture Committee approved a bill to restore major price supports at 90 per cent of parity.

The vote was 23-11, crossing party lines, and Chairman Cooley (D-NC) predicted House passage of the legislation.

WAR-BORN LAW

After a long struggle in Congress last year, the Eisenhower administration succeeded in scrapping the war-born law calling for high price supports on "basic" commodities. Substituted was a measure providing a more flexible system ranging from 82½ to 90 per cent of parity.

Parity is a standard of fixing farm prices, declared by law to give producers a fair return in relation to the price of things they buy.

While Cooley was confident that the House would go along with his committee, he declined to comment on the bill's chances in the Senate.

The new House legislation would reinstate 90 per cent supports for wheat, rice, cotton, corn and peanuts. Tobacco, the sixth basic crop, is supported at 90 per cent under a special law.

DAIRY PROP RISE

Rep. Abernethy (D-Miss) added a dairy provision which would raise the price support floor for dairy products—milk, cheese and butter—from its present level of 75 per cent of parity to 80. The change would become effective immediately upon enactment. Under present law Secretary of Agriculture Benson has authority to slide dairy supports between 75 and 90 per cent. He pushed them back to 75 per cent a year ago but the current level is around 80.

BRUCELLOSIS FIGHT

The House bill provides a two-year extension of the federal program for eradicating brucellosis, a cattle disease also known as infectious abortion. The government would spend 15 million dollars a year to indemnify dairymen for diseased cattle destroyed under the program.

The bill also contains provisions for a referendum by wheat growers on a two-price wheat plan, and a one-year extension of the school milk program through 1957. The federal contribution to the program would be increased from 50 million dollars a year to 75. School milk money is allotted to the states for the purchase of whole milk.

Amnesia Mother of 3 Marries

SAN JOSE, Calif., March 8 (U)—The case of a young woman described as an amnesia victim who left her husband and three children two years ago and later married another man unfolded today.

Mrs. Stella Sullivan, police juvenile officer, said relatives identified the woman as Mrs. Marge Mangini, 26, who in 1953 left her family to seek work.

She didn't come back to San Jose until this week—and said she was married to James M. Neal, a cook in Boise, Idaho.

SIGHTED BY BARTENDER

She was recognized by a bartender who called Mrs. Sullivan, who had handled the placement of her children, ranging in age from 1 to 6, when their mother left them.

Mrs. Sullivan reported Mrs. Ada Clark, San Jose housewife, identified Mrs. Mangini-Neal as her daughter and that, at first, the woman did not recognize her mother or two sisters and a brother.

Tonight, after seeing pictures of her three children and having previous events described by her family, Mrs. Mangini began recalling some of her former identity.

When she left San Jose she went to Los Angeles and apparently simultaneously lost her memory, she said. She worked as a waitress in various towns in the country and returned to Los Angeles about a year ago, where she said she met Neal. They have been living in Boise recently.

CHIEF WORRIES

During her wanderings and her marriage to Neal, the young woman said she had no recollection of having previously been married or of having had any children.

She told a reporter her two chief worries were how to explain the situation to Neal, who was reported en route from Boise, and whether or not she would be permitted to regain custody of her children.

Mrs. Clark said she understood Mangini had started divorce proceedings after he believed his wife had deserted him, but she believed the case was dropped.

Mrs. Clark said her daughter had had two previous amnesia attacks.

Ike's Security Aide Resigns; Texan Named

WASHINGTON, March 8 (U)—President Eisenhower today accepted the resignation of Robert Cutler as his special assistant for national security affairs. He announced Dillon Anderson, Houston, Tex., attorney, will succeed Cutler April 1.

Cutler is returning to his former position as president of the Old Colony Trust Co., of Boston. As a presidential aide, Cutler played a major role in building the National Security Council into a top policymaking unit on hot and cold war strategy.

Anderson is listed by the White House as a Democrat-for-Eisenhower in the 1952 presidential campaign. Anderson, 48, has been serving as a consultant to the National Security Council since 1953. The job pays $20,000 annually.

Wife, 42, Fatally Beaten; Atlantan, 29, Is Jailed

A frail, 42-year-old woman, her head and body covered with bruises, was pronounced dead on arrival at Grady Hospital Tuesday night, Police said.

Her husband, Thurgood Wright, 29, a former tent and awning company employee, was held at city jail for suspicion of murder.

Det. E. F. McKillop said Wright admitted in a signed statement that he beat his wife, Mrs. Lois Wright, with an Army belt and a vanity stool after she stayed away from home over the weekend following an argument Saturday.

The couple lived in an apartment at the rear of 1096 Hemphill, NW.

CALLED CAB

Wright was quoted as saying he administered the whipping at 3 a.m. Tuesday. McKillop said Wright called a taxicab and took his wife to Grady Hospital Tuesday night. She was pronounced dead upon arrival at Grady at 7:30 p.m.

A medical examination will be conducted to determine the exact cause of death, McKillop said.

McKillop said in the statement Wright told of leaving his wife following an argument in a Jones avenue, NW, restaurant Saturday. McKillop said Wright evidently became angry because his wife did not return home until Tuesday morning.

MANY BRUISES

Earlier Wright was quoted as saying his wife remained away from home over the weekend and when she returned Tuesday she appeared to have been severely beaten. He told detectives he at-

McKillop said Mrs. Wright evidently was dead before being taken from the apartment at the rear of 1096 Hemphill Ave., NW.

Almost every inch of the woman's body was covered with bruises, some of which appeared to have been inflicted some time ago, McKillop related.

Laborites Reported Ready To Oust Defiant Bevan

LONDON, March 8 (U)—The British Labor Party's parliamentary high command has decided to recommend expulsion of leftwing leader Aneurin Bevan from the party for rebellion against the Socialist leadership, informed sources said today.

The sources said the drastic move was decided in a meeting of former Prime Minister Clement Attlee's "shadow cabinet," a 17-member group that commands Labor Party policy in Parliament.

The powerful group was reported to have voted the crack-down on the fiery Bevan because he publicly defied Attlee's party leadership in the House of Commons last Wednesday.

Bevan made a defiant Commons speech at the time and refused to vote for a Labor Party motion to censure the Conservative government's defense policy. To rub in his contempt, he publicly asked Attlee in Commons what the motion meant.

Sixty-one Socialist members of Parliament joined Bevan in abstaining—a humiliating blow to Attlee's prestige.

The reported ouster action seemed certain to provoke a wide open party split between left and right wing factions at a time when the Socialists need all their strength for new general elections expected to be called this year.

Gov. Griffin Vetoes An Unwise 'Probe'

Gov. Marvin Griffin is, in our opinion, entirely correct in his veto of the "school investigation" legislation introduced by the Fulton County delegation.

The governor, on advice from his law department, vetoes the bill on grounds of unconstitutionality.

That's enough. The governor then adds, in a common-sense message, that the "investigation" of the Atlanta schools would, in effect, have been conducted by Fulton County. This, he says, with indisputable truth, is "repugnant to the separation of powers in principle and is utterly destructive of our long established concept of local government."

No reasonable person will argue with that. Chiefly at fault, though we do not think they so intended, are the Fulton legislators. They insist, and we believe them, they did not intend an "investigation," but rather a study. They declare, and again we believe them, they were not at all the tools of the disgruntled faction which long has been making charges, as yet entirely without sustaining evidence, against the city school administration.

The Fulton County legislators wanted a study. And a study is needed.

The plain truth is the county system is just about out of funds, and the city is not too far behind. A study along these lines would have been a constructive contribution.

But, the legislators were careless with semantics. They allowed their bill to be called an "investigation." This brought out all the witches riding their brooms and crying "Hi-Yo Silver."

Had the study been held—and had it been restricted to a study instead of being permitted to become a political sounding board—the school systems permanently would have been harmed because of the sound and fury outside the study. And, of course, had it been permitted to degenerate into an inquisition, both systems would have been done irreparable harm.

We have a good, decent city, and a fine county as well.

We believe we have two school administrations in charge of honest, intelligent persons who are doing their best at a time when education all over America is in financial trouble. The schools, therefore, are crowded and productive of irritations and discontent.

We badly need a study. Perhaps we can yet have one—in each system—our own.

Meanwhile, in our opinion the governor's veto was a wise step—as well as in accord with the State Constitution.

Mr. Charlie Redwine Was a Good Georgian

When Mr. Charlie Redwine died, Georgia lost one of her outstanding citizens and a fine example of a more gentlemanly past.

Mr. Redwine was a squire, one of the last of an old school. He was a benevolent sort of patriarch who lived on land that had been in his family for more than a century. He farmed, and operated a multitude of businesses in his native Fayette County. The same obligations and affections he felt for his home, his family and his friends, he felt also for his state and carried this feeling over into his public life.

Mr. Charlie served Georgia ably and with scrupulous honesty as a revenue commissioner under Gov. Herman Talmadge. For six years he held this sensitive and important job, not because he needed or particularly wanted it, but in order to help the son of his old friend, Gov. Eugene Talmadge. He was helping Georgia too, and cracking down on tax evaders and revoking the licenses of law-breaking liquor dealers were the chief joys he found in office. Mr. Charlie was a religious man. He lived by the rule, and expected those around him to live by it, too.

A lot of the Old South survived in Mr. Charlie. Immaculate linen suits, a Panama and courtly manners, particularly toward the ladies, were characteristic of him. So, also was a sense of noblesse oblige and loyalty to friends, places and ideals.

Entrance Requirements Might Be Made Tighter

The cost of education continues to rise. So does the number of those who want, or think they want, a college degree.

If the forecasts are accurate, the future will see the nation's colleges and universities swamped by a tidal wave of students. And it will take a mighty high tax tide to provide the services they demand.

Equal opportunity is a basic American belief. But as one sponge will hold more water than another, so it is with learning and the individual.

It is becoming increasingly obvious to many educators that a lot of young Americans go to college to join a fraternity or sorority, to get married, or simply to postpone work for a few more years. It costs as much to keep them in school as it does the serious students.

About 40 per cent of those who enter college finish the four-year course and earn their degrees. The others fall by the wayside for a number of reasons. One of the chief reasons is that they never were suited for college, and never should have entered.

A high school education is all that some need or can take. Many are able and eager to concentrate through four years of college and then go into graduate work. All too many enter college, and waste their time and the time of their teachers, partly at public expense, until they give up and go to work.

New Crisis in Asia Breaks Out Every Day

As Secretary Dulles goes before the American people with his report on the Asiatic situation, a new crisis has broken out. In fact, there is a new crisis almost every day. Yesterday it was a new rebellion in unhappy Viet Nam—apparently of non-Communist origin.

It is difficult for the average citizen of the United States to understand the problems of Asia.

He cannot conceive, for instance, of the poverty and hunger that are traditional—poverty and hunger that the Communists cleverly exploit as being the result of Western exploitation.

A recent survey showed that Asia has 53.2 per cent of the world's population. And yet it has 17.3 of the world's income. The per capita wage is about one-twentieth that of the U.S. There is, therefore, no vast consumer market to promote industrial development and insufficient capital to develop the most elemental of industries in most districts.

Most of the people reside in small rural villages, with a bare subsistence level of existence. Their social institutions are based on the family and religion. The building of industry is the only way to transform this rural life and increase the purchasing power of the people. In changing from this rural to a balanced economic system, the social institutions must undergo change, too.

This semi-feudal system, rooted in family and religious discipline, has been in process of collapsing for almost half a century. Young Asians seek the personal freedom and opportunities of the West. They have lost faith in their old institutions and want material and personal advancement.

The West can lose Asia by default. And when the revolution is completed, Asia might well bear the stamp of communism because Communist leadership is aggressively pursuing its goal of conquest by every means available.

Your Survival Chances Are a Local Matter

The average Atlantan is worried about what he can do to prevent becoming atomized in case of an A-bomb or H-bomb attack. The current controversy about who is responsible for civil defense here lends him no comfort.

Basically and traditionally, the responsibility for civil defense is local. Backing this idea is the latest information from the Federal Civil Defense Administration. In a directive issued yesterday, this agency points out:

"No longer can any American avoid the responsibility for learning everything possible about personal and community survival."

Here in Atlanta, where the civil defense problem is more acute than anywhere in the state, the director of the program, Elliott Jackson, cannot even get an audience with the Board of Aldermen to discuss the need. Perhaps the board knows more than Mr. Jackson and the Federal Civil Defense Administration. If they do, they should so inform the people.

The State of Georgia's Department of Defense, headed by Adj. Gen. George Hearn, has recently issued the first statewide plan for organization of a coordinated civil defense effort. It was issued in accord with state law and in cooperation with federal planning. The plan on paper is splendid and well prepared. It cannot be put into effect, however, without Atlanta's cooperation.

Gen. Hearn and the state apparently are doing their part of the job. The Federal Government is trying harder than ever in the past to institute a workable program on a national scale. But any effective civil defense is dependent upon local communities, the people and their officials.

In other words, if we want to live in case of an atomic attack, we had best organize a community program concerned with our own survival.

Red China's Entry to United Nations Urged As Possible Way to Arrive at World Peace

Atlanta — Saving face is not necessarily a monopoly of the Chinese for one gets the feeling that we too want to save face.

It is an upside down world today. As an example, Germany is our very good friend, although within the past 40 years we have had to go to war with her twice, in which we have made great sacrifices in the blood of our menfolk. The same applies to Japan and to Italy. But today, we are the friends of Germany, Japan and Italy.

The Communists are in power in China today. Who knows what will happen within the next 10 or 15 years? It is barely possible that China will again call on us to be of help. But one thing we do know — we have never had to fight the Chinese people, that they have been our friends and we have been their friends.

Russia is a member of the United Nations and we certainly are not in agreement with her policies. At the same time, we have to realize that they are going to exist and we are going to exist, and with the great progress that we are making in our system it seems to me that we have every advantage to be patient.

Do we owe a debt to Chiang Kai-shek? This is where the thinking is so upside down. On the contrary, he is indebted to us.

Based upon the foregoing, we have one thing to consider. It is up to us to be big enough to say "Look here, we want this thing settled. Come on in the United Nations and let's see what you can do. If you won't do what is right we will expel you." In that respect I think we would be on solid foundation and at least we could feel that we were coming nearer to preventing war.

Change Itself Is a Relief

Bremen, Ga., is a garment town. Has been since 1928-29, during which time the population has risen from 900 to 3,000. The Sewells, the Hubbards and the Cluett-Peabody make suits, pants and shirts respectively. On a recent social occasion gathering all three, Gene Hughes, whose business is suits, told of an incident involving Elmer Hubbard, the pants man, and a friend who is in shirts. Seems that Elmer went to the shirt outlet and asked for a dozen size 16½, 33-inch sleeves. "I'm sorry," said the shirt man, "but I am out of 16½'s." "Then give me half a dozen 16's and half a dozen 17's," said the pants man.

"But why would you buy half a dozen too small and as many too big?" asked still another friend.

"Because," said Elmer Hubbard, "after choking in a tight 16 one day, changing to a loose 17 the next will be such a relief."

There is a story that has the same basis. It is about the fellow on the trolley who complained each ride home about tight shoes. After several rides home, the trolley operator finally asked, "Why do you wear tight shoes?"

"Because," said the complainant, "I have a boss who is a slave driver, a son who was kicked out of college, a daughter who ran off last week and married a no-good loafer, and a wife who is a constant nag. Getting home at night and taking off those shoes is the only pleasure I get out of life."

TRIPLE PLAY: From Bill Gold of the Washington Post and Times-Herald by way of Charles Craven and The Raleigh News-Observer: "I wonder if a mama kangaroo, gossiping with another mama kangaroo on a rainy day, has ever sighed, 'Don't you just hate these days when they can't play outside?'"

HIGHLINES: We note that a lot of land has been turned since the last cold spell, and that the pool room bench is not as crowded as it has been, which leads us to believe that folks are preparing for another crop, despite the terrible beating they took last year. —"Bub" Lang in The Omega News.

I am sorely afraid that this world is going to continue with unhappiness as long as the average man keeps believing that the sweetest music is made by bumping coins together in one's pocket. —"Tige" Pickle in The Early County News.

It must pay to get everything straight, for one of our uncles got mixed up and shut up because he thought it was, "Make shine while the hay suns!" —"Depot Dope" in the Grantville Gazette.

What is happening is that there are certain people here in Syracuse who are making up stories which are neither true nor likely to become true. This is not the first time that I have noticed these people; in fact I am constantly aware of them.

If foiled in action, they resort to stories of this kind or even more villainous fabrications, and their aim is to make you, the mass of the people, frightened, and so gain control of the government themselves. And I am really afraid that their continual efforts may one day be successful. We ourselves are too feeble; we do not forestall them before they act; we do not follow them up with vigor once we have detected them.

It is because of this that our city rarely enjoys a period of tranquility, and is involved in continual party strife and struggles more within herself than against the enemy.

At least 1,419,000 did not write books and publish them last year. Despite unprecedented drought disaster, the state didn't actually dry up and blow away to Oklahoma and Texas, and the mountains look as good as ever.

Ice Was Beautiful But Spelled Danger

Begin reading at the first verse of the Bible and you will read only 66 verses before you come to fear. "I was afraid," said Adam. Fear is not something this generation has developed. After God had created that first man, He looked at him and said man was good. There was absolutely no flaw in God's creation. God put fear into man when he made him and thereby we know that fear is good and necessary.

The other day I had a speaking engagement in Virginia but I couldn't make airplane connections to get there. A physician phoned that he would meet me in Knoxville in his private plane. I have always preached that one should trust his doctor so I felt all right about it. When I got to Knoxville it was snowing and, though we didn't have much time to lose, he wouldn't take off. We sat up in the weather office and carefully he studied the reports as they came in.

Finally he decided we would try it, so up we went. The air was smooth and the little plane was performing beautifully. But after we had gone about twenty miles he began to turn. I expressed surprise and he pointed to a strip of ice forming on the front edge of the wings. It looked harmless to me. In fact, the ice was beautiful as it sparkled in the sunlight. I would have gone on but he saw danger and turned back. The ice would have increased to the point that the plane could not have carried it and we would have crashed in the mountains. His fear probably saved our lives.

Not only does fear safeguard us from danger, it is also a positive and constructive force in our lives.

For example, millions of dollars are now being spent seeking to learn the cause and prevention of polio. Why will we spend that money? Because we fear that paralyzing disease. Fear has built every medical laboratory on this earth.

Because we fear poverty, we work and we save and we take out insurance. The fear of ignorance has built our schools and colleges and is the force that sends us forth in search of knowledge.

We usually think of faith as the cure for fear. Also, the opposite is true—fear is the cause of faith for without fear we would have no need of faith. Fear defeats some people, but it moves others to find God and to trust in His power.

Also, fear leads to right living. When I do wrong, I feel pain inside me. God made me like that. The reason a lot of people don't feel right is because they are not right. Whether it be in the body or in the conscience, pain is the alarm bell that awakens fear and puts it to work.

Without fear we would be ignorant, spineless, depraved people. But like many other normal things, fear can become abnormal, and abnormal fear can take all the joy out of living. This we will discuss tomorrow.

Not only does fear safeguard us from danger, it is also a positive and constructive force in our lives.

Matusow's 'Stories' Develop Pink Tinge

WASHINGTON—Harvey Matusow is an admitted former Communist whose recent actions make him look more than ever a tool of the Communists. He is a self-proclaimed unexampled liar who says he has testified falsely about some 240 Americans whom he has linked to communism by evidence he invented. He is certainly one of the most unpleasant and unhealthy excrecences on the American landscape today.

What seems to me important about the present Matusow testimony is not merely that he has chosen to withdraw past accusations, but that he proves himself to be an unreliable witness, a grossly, patently unreliable witness—unreliable in the past and unreliable in the present.

Take his repeated, snug and disproved statement that he wanted to testify about former Communists in order to "make up to his country" for having been a member of the Communist conspiracy himself. How did he redeem this crime? By impairing the true interests of intelligent anti-communism through wholesale lying about individuals.

Note that the initiative which Matusow took to reverse past testimony came through a conference between Matusow and the lawyers defending the 13 second-string Communist leaders in New York.

Matusow's forthcoming book, "False Witness," is being underwritten by the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers which is buying 7,000 to 10,000 copies. This union was expelled from the Congress of Industrial Organizations because it was Communist-dominated.

Matusow's publishers, Albert E. Kahn and Angus Cameron, have both pleaded the Fifth Amendment in refusing to testify whether they are members of the Communist Party. Matusow, in his new role as recanter of past testimony, casually said that it didn't seem important to him, one way or the other, whether his publishers are Communists.

It seems to me conclusive that Matusow ought not to be and ought never to have been accepted as a witness against anything or for anything, against anybody or for anybody.

Isn't this the transcendent lesson to be gained from this revolting, miasmic mess which Matusow has strewn in his wake? It is a lesson we can say we have learned only when we honestly explore and answer the question: How and why was Matusow ever turned loose on the American people and on the American courts as a worthy, listenable witness? Did the Justice Department ever really check his credentials and test his credibility before employing him as a paid informer?

It seems clear, now, that the answer to these questions is negative. Some of the evil which Matusow has wrought can be repaired if the whole experience makes the government determined to investigate more thoroughly the character and credibility of such professional informers before it—or the public—gives them house room.

Civil Defense Plans Hit Wall of Apathy

WASHINGTON—There's one thing we do easily in this atomic age. That is to shoot off another big apple every few days out at Yucca Flats, Nev. Just what that proves nobody bothers to tell us plain folks. We are, of course, only the potential targets if the world suddenly goes crazy—or rather its few rulers who hold the fate of civilization—and plunge us into an atomic war.

These explosions have become routine. No longer do they chill the blood as did the earlier experiments.

Yet, those bits of concentrated hell, these bombs, and the radiation that goes along with them and poison the atmosphere—they are, we now know, dangerous and can spread death and destruction for miles around.

It's hard to believe it, but in this atomic age, with the problem as big as one as survival of a nation, you find the policy makers still daunted by the bugaboo of state rights, and about how far the Federal Government should go in making plans and trying to impose them on our citizens.

What do you do? Do you try to scare all of us into cooperation? Well, our people do not seem to scare easily, at least that would be the deduction from the deadpan national reaction to all the bombs bursting in air and the recent publication by the AEC of the immense "fall-out" danger belt from atomic explosions.

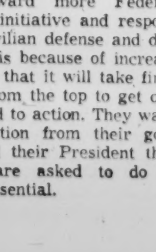

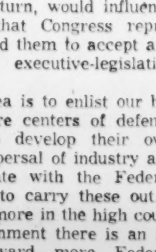

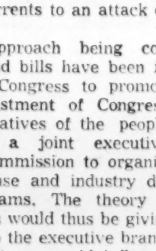

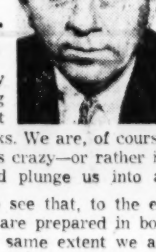

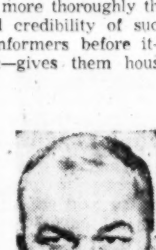

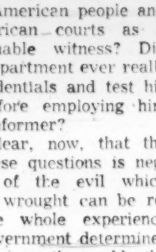

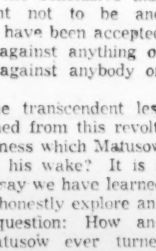

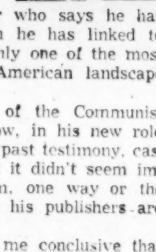

Either that, or they have become fatalistic.

To combat this apathy several approaches are now under consideration. They are based on appeal to the reason and sound sense of our people rather than fear. As for both civilian defense and dispersal of industry, it is only common sense to see that, to the extent that we are prepared in both areas, to the same extent we are building deterrents to an attack on us.

Another approach being considered—and bills have been introduced in Congress to promote it—is enlistment of Congress, the representatives of the people, by creating a joint executive-legislative commission to organize civilian defense and industry dispersal programs. The theory is that Congress would thus be giving its backing to the executive branch and that, in turn, would influence the people that Congress represents and lead them to accept and follow joint executive-legislative planning.

More and more in the high councils of government there is an inclination toward more Federal Government initiative and responsibility in civilian defense and dispersal. This is because of increasing evidence that it will take firm leadership from the top to get our people moved to action. They want a demonstration from their government and their President that what they are asked to do is absolutely essential.

'Ferrell Had Vote When Shift Made'

Witness Says AP Returns Changed

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 8. —A state witness told the Arch Ferrell jury today the vote changes here last June occurred while the election tabulation sheets were in possession of Ferrell and former Alabama Atty. Gen. Si Garrett.

The testimony dealt with the addition of 600 votes to the total of Lee (Red) Porter, Gadsden attorney, in the hotly fought race for attorney general. A. L. Patterson was shot to death 17 days after he won the Democratic nomination.

CLAIM MOTIVE SAME

The prosecution in the murder trial maintains that Patterson's campaign promise to clean up Phenix City was responsible for both his killing and the vote stealing.

Lamar Reid, indicted for the vote fraud along with Ferrell and Garrett, still was in the midst of a dramatic recital of what he said occurred in the case when court recessed until 9 a.m. (EST) tomorrow. Reid, county Democratic chairman at the time and a young Birmingham attorney, said he first turned down a hint from Garrett that 2,000 votes be added to Porter's total but later agreed to the addition of 600.

Ferrell and Garrett are two of the three men charged with the murder of Patterson at Phenix City the night of June 18.

COPIED AP RETURNS

Reid said he went to the Associated Press office to copy complete county-by-county returns at Garrett's request three days after the election (Patterson was 14 hundred odd votes ahead). The witness said he took them to Garrett and Ferrell in a Birmingham hotel.

Reid continued that Garrett, with Ferrell present, told him Patterson was "stealing the election" and that "discovery of an error" of 2,000 in this county would elect Porter.

The young Birmingham lawyer said he told Garrett and Ferrell this was impossible.

Reid said he left the Associated Press county-by-county tabulation sheets overnight with Garrett and Ferrell and also left with them the official Jefferson County box-by-box recapitulation table.

By the next morning, he told the jury, changes had been made in the Jefferson box-by-box sheets to make Porter's total 23,660 instead of 23,060.

ANOTHER DIVORCE?—LAUSANNE, Switzerland, March 8.—Ex-Queen Narmiman of Egypt has retained an attorney to help her obtain a divorce from her second husband, a friend of Narmiman's said today. Narmiman, above, married Dr. Adham El Nakib of Cairo last spring after getting a divorce from ex-King Farouk. She is in Switzerland for medical treatment.

Haymes and 'Ex' Close Cash Tiff On Happy Chord

LOS ANGELES, March 8. —Crooner Dick Haymes, who said he recently squared his child support debts to wife No. 2, Joanne Dru Ireland, now has settled his long alimony argument with wife No. 3, Nora Eddington Flynn Haymes.

Wife No. 3's attorney, S. S. Hahn, said today in announcing the settlement that both parties had agreed not to disclose the amount.

He said that a lump payment will replace the $100-a-week alimony payments set when Mrs. Haymes got her divorce in September, 1953.

House Group Okays Raises for Military Career Men

WASHINGTON, March 8. —The House Armed Services Committee voted 30-0 today to give career men in the armed services pay raises running from 6 to 25 per cent.

House approval is expected Thursday, with Senate action to follow. President Eisenhower asked the legislation, in order to cut down on what military officials described as a dangerous and expensive loss of good men who leave for jobs in private life.

The pay raises, averaging an estimated 11.9 per cent, would become effective on the first day of the month after the bill has been signed into law.

The House committee adopted without change a subcommittee version of the measure which finally will add about 19 million dollars a year to original Pentagon estimates. This will bring the cost to about 745 million dollars a year.

The bill boosts pay for all enlisted men and warrant officers with more than two years' service and all commissioned officers with over three years' duty.

The measure increases special monthly pay for hazardous air and submarine duty, establishes a new "dislocation allowance" of one month's pay for service families making a permanent change of station and boosts the daily travel allowance from $9 to $12.

Officers of second lieutenant grade with over three years of service would get the top 25 per cent increase. This would raise their pay $39.28 a month to $296.40. Privates with over two years of service would get $7.80 more a

U. Ga., Division Divorce Decision Seen for April

The regents apparently will decide in April whether to divorce the Atlanta division from the University of Georgia.

President O. C. Aderhold of the University of Georgia spent some time Tuesday with the education committee of the board.

However, Frank Foley of Columbus, chairman of the committee, said the matter will not be discussed at the board meeting Wednesday.

The committee is awaiting recommendations from Chancellor Harmon Caldwell, who is making a study of the proposal.

Dr. Aderhold is opposed to separating the Atlanta Division, but Foley said Aderhold made no recommendations to the committee. The university president simply gave the committee detailed information on the situation, Foley said.

The committee did not take up a legislative subcommittee's recommendations that the Atlanta Division be made a separate college. The report was filed with the chancellor's office.

Meanwhile, the day and evening Student Councils of the Atlanta Division have passed a resolution favoring separation from the university.

The student groups asked the regents to authorize the Atlanta Division as a separate, independent unit of the University System, to award a four-year degree in liberal arts and a master's degree in business administration.

"Thousands of students in and around Atlanta and throughout Georgia and the South are presently deprived of the opportunity to attain their educational goals and requirements to meet their needs in the business and social work because of a lack of adequate degree program in liberal arts and a lack of graduate degree in business administration at a state-supported institution," the resolution said. It noted that these students are not financially able to leave their homes and jobs to attend a college campus.

A petition was being circulated to enable all students at the Atlanta Division to sign the resolution.

tion of the Atlanta Division, published a statement from Tom Luck Jr., of Atlanta, alumni president, calling for separation of the division from the university. "We are confident the regents will give our recommendations full consideration," Luck said, "and we look forward to a favorable decision in the interest of students of the State of Georgia."

Chancellor Caldwell said Wednesday's session of the regents will be devoted to setting budgets for the new fiscal year for all colleges. Allocations of state grants were made last month. The budgets will include the monies derived from fees and other sources.

DeKalb Recreation Board Named To Plan Activities

Commissioner Wheat Williams Tuesday named a seven-member board to coordinate recreation activities in DeKalb County.

Selected for the DeKalb County Board of Parks and Recreation were J. B. Clonts, Forrest Jack May, Mrs. Maurice E. Peabody Jr. and Julian Brisendine of Decatur, Ed Tucker of Lithonia, J. A. Lymburner of Atlanta and B. K. Smith of Tucker.

Williams noted $250,000 in bond funds approved in 1952 had been expended by the county but that previously no authority had existed to supervise recreational work. The group will assist the commissioner in promoting an organized program in DeKalb County and will cooperate with civic clubs in developing park areas.

In other commission business

Tuesday Williams transferred the direction and supervision of the county-operated cannery from the Department of Inspection to the Department of Public Works. The change was recommended by Griffenhagen and Associates in their report on county government.

Charles D. Redwine Dies; Lived Politics 50 Years

71 years as a man of rugged integrity.

He served as mayor of his home town of Fayetteville when he was only 22 years old. Later he served for many years in the Legislature, became president of the State Senate, once ran for governor, and became Georgia's first "billion-dollar" revenue commissioner.

In the sensitive and highly important revenue post, he was described by former Gov. Herman Talmadge as a "Rock of Gibraltar" in the Talmadge administration.

The rugged strength of "Uncle Charlie's" character was reflected in the deeply etched lines of his craggy face and in the piercing eyes that often peered sternly at liquor law violators from behind owlsh, black-frame spectacles.

It was reflected, too, in "Uncle Charlie's" homespun philosophy and his determination to administer tax laws honestly and fairly.

MAN OF COMPASSION

Despite his stern-faced contempt for dishonesty and impatience with law violators, he also was a man of compassion for those in trouble. He was known in Fayetteville as a courtly host. He was a genial conversationalist and had a keen sense of humor and a ready chuckle for a funny story. And his eyes softened whenever he spoke of the four daughters he raised himself after becoming a widower in 1926.

A cigar stuck in the corner of his mouth and a battered hat perched atop his bald head were two distinguishing characteristics about "Mr. Charlie's" rather distinctive appearance.

Charles D. Redwine was born six miles from Fayetteville on Sept. 10, 1883, a son of the late Morgan L. Redwine and Henrietta Wilson Redwine.

Young Redwine was only 10 years old when his father died. He had to help run the family farm, but attended grammar school at Ebenezer and high school at Fayetteville.

He married a schoolmate, Miss Alma Clifford Burks of Fayetteville, Dec. 14, 1910. Mrs. Redwine died Dec. 18, 1926.

FOUR DAUGHTERS

Of the five children born to the union, four daughters survive. They are Mrs. Douglas Dennis and Miss Elizabeth Redwine, both of Fayetteville; Mrs. Dan Carmichael and Mrs. Adair Dickerson, both of McDonough. The son, Charles D. Redwine Jr., died in infancy.

He also is survived by his brother, H. P. Redwine of Fayetteville.

A successful business career had its beginning when Charlie Redwine started as a boy trading pocket knives, calves and pigs with his brother, Hill. Later they began trading with their neighbors.

He branched out from farming into business when he was 17, taking a job as an office boy and runner and bookkeeper for the Bank of Fayetteville.

Three years later he joined the late Congressman J. W. Wise in forming the Farmers & Merchants Bank, becoming cashier and later president.

The young banker kept up his farming operations, and in time he and his brother, Hill, traded themselves into a little empire that included three banks, two cotton gins, an automobile agency, filling stations, farms, an undertaking establishment, a lumber business, a mercantile and general supply business, an oil distributorship and a fertilizer plant.

PARTNERSHIP

Their partnership has been an informal one, never set down on paper. Mr. Charlie kept a shrewd eye on the banks and the farms and Mr. Hill looked after the other Redwine enterprises.

"One reason I can afford this job as revenue commissioner," Mr. Charlie once said, "is that

Asthma Formula Used Most By Doctors

Stops Attacks in Minutes...Lasts for Hours!

New York, N.Y. (Special)—Medical science has developed a new, tiny tablet that stops asthma attacks...and gives hours of freedom from recurrence of painful asthma spasms. Authoritative medical tests have proved that this remarkable compound brings blessed relief in mere minutes...relief that lasts for hours. This fast-acting formula is prescribed more than any other by doctors for their private patients. And now asthma sufferers can obtain this formula—without prescription—in tiny, easy-to-take tablets called Primatene.
New Primatene opens bronchial tubes, loosens mucous congestion, relieves taut, nervous tension. All this without taking painful injections, and without the inconvenience of nebulizers. The secret of Primatene is that it combines 4 medicines found most effective in combination for asthma distress. Each medicine performs a special purpose. Primatene is available at all drug stores. East Point Child Injured by Car

A four-year-old East Point girl was critically injured Tuesday when struck by a car at Lawrence avenue and Davis street in East Point.

Jewell Maxine Fields of 128 N. bell Ave., East Point, was admitted to Grady Hospital in Atlanta with severe head and internal injuries. Patrolmen Kenneth Stephens and H. A. Rickerson said.

Patrolmen said the child ran into the path of a car driven by John F. Davis, of 431 Connell Ave., SW.

tion and we don't like it," Wood replied.

"That's very reassuring that you're worried about it," Fulbright told Wood.

Fulbright remarked to reporters that the performance of the market today "is only demonstrating the wisdom" of Galbraith's words of caution.

The break in the market today, which some brokers attributed to Galbraith's testimony, wiped about three billion dollars off the market value of all stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped $3.10 a share.

The 6-foot plus professor, who used his hands for gestures much as if he were discussing economics with his students, told the committee that a "catastrophic break" in the stock market seems improbable. But, he said, it would be "unwise to go on the assumption that it couldn't happen."

As a precautionary measure, Galbraith proposed that stock buying be put on a cash basis. He avoided saying outright whether this should be done in one step or in stages.

The Federal Reserve Board, which regulates what is known as "margins" for buying stock, now requires 60 per cent cash. The margin was increased from 50 to 60 per cent in January, but the stock market has continued to rise since then.

The Banking Committee before which Galbraith testified is making what Chairman Fulbright has described as a "friendly study" of rising stock prices the past 18 months or so.

Galbraith said it is "perfectly possible that the market could go on up and there could be a collapse."

But, he added, the situation now is more like that in late 1927 and in 1928 rather than 1929 when the crash occurred. However, he said, enough has happened already "to give us some sense of alarm that we may be taking off into unreality."

Galbraith told the committee

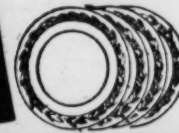

there now are "unhealthy elements" in the stock market as there were in the late 1920s—"resemblances which are certainly interesting and possibly disturbing."

"And the fundamental problem of containing a speculative orgy, once it is well launched, remains essentially unsolved," he said. He said the scale of 1929 speculation was far greater than anything yet witnessed, and that the economy "is also less brittle" than in 1929 and less subject to damage from disturbances emanating from the market.

HOTTEST BUICK IN HISTORY

No wonder you see so many 1955 Buicks on the highways—they're rolling up bigger sales than ever before in history—topping the popularity that has already made Buick one of the "Big Three" in total national sales.

Who says you can't have getaway and gas saving too?

(maybe you'd better try Variable Pitch Dynaflo®!)

As any automotive engineer will tell you, the goal in automatic transmissions has long been a design that would give top acceleration and top gas mileage—and still be absolutely smooth.

Well, it's easy to step up acceleration; or gas mileage—but tough to do both together—unless a lot of gearshifting takes place, which cuts down on smoothness.

So Buick engineers looked to aviation for the answer—and brother! what a wondrous new magic they came up with!

They took a leaf from the airplane's variable pitch propeller—which switches the pitch of its blades one way for quick take-off—and another way for better gas mileage aloft.

They brought the same principle to Dynaflo Drive®—to the twenty propeller-like blades in the Dynaflo "stator." They engineered these blades to swivel like the blades of the plane propeller—and with the same results.

In cruising and in all normal driving, the blades are angled for fuel economy—and you get a lot more miles from a tankful of gas.

But when you have to move instantly—when you need quick getaway, or a sudden burst of safety-surge power to get out of a tight spot on the highway—you just press down that gas pedal, and you're off in a split second.

You've never felt anything like it before—because there's never been anything like it before in an automobile.

It's action that's sheer thrill—action that's backed by the highest V8 horsepowers in Buick history—action that's sending Buick sales soaring to record-high levels.

Come in and try it, at the wheel of a Buick SPECIAL, CENTURY, SUPER or ROADMASTER. You have nothing to lose—and the most thrilling buy of the year to meet.

*Dynaflo Drive is standard on Roadmaster, optional at extra cost on other Series.

Thrill of the year is Buick

Dazzy Vance Re-Discovered

HOMOSASS, SPRINGS, Fla., March 8 — There isn't a man anywhere happier than Dazzy Vance has been lately. Once he sat in his cabin by the side of the road and the rae of men sped by. Now, the race has slowed down. I turns into the dusty little road that winds through he woods to the house where he lives, and together Dzy and his friends sit and talk of his new glory.

"Nobody," he say, "ever would have give that 31-year-old feller that came's spring training with Brooklyn in 1922 a chance of ever being in he Hall of Fame. Now, would they?"

The obvious answer is a good and hearty "No." But there's old Daz, a new initiate of the Hall of Fame. It is sort of a resurrection for him, one of the great fast ball pitchers of all time. He had been secreted in his patch of woods a mile north of this little spot on State Highway 19, the main street of Florida's West Coast, and recalled only on rare occasions. Usually, it was when somebody was trying to come up with a story about old Wilbert Robinson and the Trolley Dodgers, as the Bums once were known.

Dazzy had been around when he finally got to Brooklyn on the recommendation of Nap Rucker, then the Dodgers' Southern scout. Pittsburgh had tried him and let him go, and the Yankees. He joined the Dodgers a pitching re-tread, eventually won 198 games, led the National League seven seasons in strikeouts and drew the highest salary ($35,000) ever paid a pitcher up to his time.

To get a comparison, take the case of Art Fowler. He left the Crackers to join Cincinnati at 31. At a comparable age, Fowler has won only six less major league games than Vance.

—After 63 Years, the First Tuxedo

"Lod at this picture," Dazzy said. "All of these years, 63 of them, I'd gone without having to wear one of them things, and here I am, in my first tuxedo."

He fished the photograph out of a corrugated box full of clippings and programs. There, holding their plaques at the New York banquet, were Vance, Joe DiMaggio and Gabby Hartnett, three of the newest Hall of Fame residents. Dazzy was milling broadly in the picture, but not nearly as genuinely as the flesh.

"By George," he said, "We ought to celebrate this. How about a poor man's highball? You know what that is—with a little sweetening in it."

He shuffled off into the kitchen to stir up some "poor man's highballs," with a little sweetening in it. Mrs. Vance wasn't there. She was tending their little Indian-village-styled gift shop up on the highway. Those were Dazzy's days.

Why, just two nights before, the 75 people of Homosassa Springs had gathered in at Hinson's restaurant and given a big dinner for him. The Tampa papers were full of it that morning. Monday night he was to be the guest of honor at Governor Leroy Collins' annual baseball dinner for the spring training delegates.

There just wasn't much that hadn't been happening to old Daz lately, and if you said he wasn't eating it up, you wouldn't be giving the folks the facts, madame.

—He Only Threw at Cuyler and Kelly

Soon, he simmered down to the matter of pitching. Somebody had said something about the new rule chiseling down the size of the catcher's box.

"Everybody's putting in new rules," he said, "and every time they do it they make it tougher on the pitcher. They got so many rules now, like this silly 20-second thing, that a fellow can't keep his mind on pitching for trying to keep from breaking the law. Now, you know, if you throw close to a batter they stop the game and come out to warn you."

"I never threw at but two batters in my life, and then I never threw at them because of something they did. You remember Earl Smith, the catcher? He was a good friend of mine but he was with Pittsburgh. Well, he'd been riding me all day and it just got the best of me. I said to myself, 'I'm gonna knock down the next guy that steps up here.' It just happened to be Kiki Cuyler, who never had said a word to me. I knocked him down, too."

"The other time, Robby (Wilbert Robinson) had taken to calling the pitches from the bench, and on one particular pitch I'd never have made but for him, Irish Meusel of the Giants hit a two-run homer off me. Now, Irish was a good ball player, but he never got a hit off me before. This just made me mad, because there was a good game messed up because Robby was mad with our catcher and calling the signals."

"The more I thought the madder I got. George Kelly was the next batter up, old 'High-Pockets.' I just wound up and knocked him down. And George and me were good friends but I had to throw at somebody. I really wanted to throw at Robby."

"One time when I was pitching against Cincinnati, I turned Babe Pinelli's cap bill around with a pitch that got away from me. The same Babe that's the umpire. Well, when he got to first he kept yapping at me. Then he started for the mound and I started toward him. It didn't make any difference to me. I was ready for him. But just before he reached me, I said to him:

"Babe, why don't you use your head? You know damn well that I don't knock down anybody but a good feller. That broke up that fight before it ever started."

It also broke up a short Sunday afternoon siesta, after which the guests went back to join the race of man.

Della Monica Gets Army Release, Joins Crackers

Pick Whaley Arrives in Camp;
Tosheff, Thomas Fee Toledo

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 8 — Second baseman Joe Della Monica, who was inducted into the Army on the day he was supposed to report to the Cracker camp at Miami Beach in 1953, arrived here Tuesday a day after being discharged from the Army at Fort Dix.

The 27-year-old infielder, who bats right-handed, hit .261 at Evansville in '52. He played for the strong Fort Dix team last year.

Six-nine Pick Whaley, tallest player the Crackers have ever had, and Mack Roberson also reported Tuesday. Whaley, a 11-11 performer for Statesboro in the Class D Georgia State, was delayed by a basketball tournament. He played on Junior Wooten's Pelzer team, which won the Textile championship last Saturday night. Right-hander Roberson read 17-10 and had an ERA of 2.97 with Austin of the Big State. . . . No word has been heard from pitchers Noel Quenda and Fernando Rodriguez the only 19 sentees. . . . Rodriguez is the unsigned player, for president Earl Mann got the signatures of Matt Peoples, Roberson, Jimmy Smith, Clyde King and Bob Boring Tuesday. Billy Poyer, Paul Rambone and Jim Soj accepted terms Monday night. Manager George McQuinn has named right-handers Bob Tosheff and Bob Thomas to face Toledo Sunday's exhibition game. He will probably use two other hurlers in the first contest. . . . The Cracker chief says he may divide the squad for Thursday's workout, but plans no game. . . . Tuesday's drill was devoted to batting and infield practice. Infielders hit against the mechanical pitching machine, while the outfielders and catchers belted serves of King, Bill George, Roberson and Matt Peoples. . . . Mann will go to Atlanta Wednesday and return this weekend. He and McQuinn plan a trip to the Braves' Bradenton reservation in a few days. —OUTLAR.

Crax Outfield Corps Bare of Experience

Louisianan Bill Reynolds Brightest Hope
Among Present Atlanta Pasturemen

By JESSE OUTLAR
Constitution Sports Writer

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 8 — Not who's on first, but who's in the outfield is the sixty-four-dollar question in the Atlanta Cracker camp.

BOB BORING STANDS HIS GROUND AS BILLY PORTER HURTTLES TOWARD 3D
Cracker Infield Candidates Go Through Lively Workout at Jacksonville Ball Park

A year ago the Crackers had the best outfield in the Southern Association, with three regulars—Bob Montag, Pete Whisenant and Chuck Tanner—knocking in an even 300 runs.

Manager George McQuinn, who sent his squad through its third workout Tuesday morning, has six outfield candidates who drove home a mere 290 runs between them last year in B and C competition.

Bill Reynolds, a stocky 5-8, 180-pounder, draws top billing among the current cast. He's a bargain boy, plucked off the New Orleans' sandlots by part-time Cracker scout Jake Amato last year.

Owner Earl Mann thinks Amato may have stumbled up on a real gem. Reynolds certainly was off to a flying start in his first pro season with New Iberia Evangelical League. He banged Class C pitching for a .340 average, reeled off 124 RBIs and poked 21 homers, 5 triples and 40 doubles.

Reynolds operated as a first baseman on the Bayou, but McQuinn promptly shifted him to the outfield. Either Ralph Atkins or Frank Torre has a reservation at first base, but there's plenty of space in the outer garden.

McQuinn has been impressed with Reynolds' power hitting in batting practice. He was the stick-out of Tuesday's session, poling several pitches over the right-field wall. The 21-year-old Reynolds bats and throws left.

Walter Peterson, former University of Texas star; Joe Christian, John Turco, Charles Bigham and Bob Mickool round out the outfield crop.

Milwaukee officials are high on Peterson, who covered more ground than any outfielder in the organization last year. He was shuffled from Atlanta to Evansville; to Quebec to Corpus Christi in his first year as a pro. He's a muscular right-handed

Jackie Pung Must Be Rated With Titleholders' Favorites

Holds Gal Pros' Steadiest Chart

By BERT PRATHER
This may not be Jackie Pung's year to break the Louise Suggs, Patty Berg, Babe Zaharias stranglehold on the Women's Titleholders crown, but for the first time the Hawaiian star must be rated right up with the big three when the 16th running of this famous golf classic opens Thursday at Augusta Country Club.

Jackie, mother of two teenage children, playing only her third year on the Ladies Professional Golfers' Association tour, following her surprising victory in the 1952 U. S. Women's Amateur, has been playing about the steadiest golf of any of the pros during this topsy-turvy winter campaign.

In fact, she is the only player to win two tournaments, turning the trick in the Sea Island Open in January and the just-concluded Jacksonville Open. In the latter tournament Jackie used only 297 strokes to cover the 72-hole route.

Mrs. Pung's poorest showing was in Serbin Open at Miami, where she wound up in a tie for 10th with 311. In the other four tournaments she finished as follows:

IN MIDDLE OF TITLEHOLDERS PICTURE
Jackie Pung Hits Steady Pace On LPGA Tour

Los Angeles Open, tied for sixth; Tampa Open, fifth; St. Petersburg Open, second, and Sarasota Open, third.

The Augusta course has proven tough for Jackie in her only two starts. She placed fifth with a 510 in 1953 and last year was one stroke higher to tie for 11th spot. However, she seems to have found her game after two years of tour experience and should be ready to argue with defending champion Suggs, five-time winner Berg, three-time champ Zaharias and the others in the '55 renewal.

A long hitter, Jackie should find the hilly Augusta course more or less tailored to her game. Suggs, who established a new titleholders' record of 293 in capturing the '54 crown, skipped the Jacksonville Open because of a cold and may have but hopes to go into the big one well rested.

All the top professionals and a select field of amateurs, headed by Pat Lesser, who won the Doherty at Miami and last week's South Atlantic championship at Ormond Beach, Fla., are already on hand for a series of practice rounds.

The LPGA clinic, with Berg at the mike, will feature Wednesday's final test run program.

GEORGIA INDUCTS NEWCOMERS TO WALL OF FAME TONIGHT

ATHENS, March 8.—Five new members to the University of Georgia's Wall of Fame will be honored in ceremonies Wednesday night at 8:30 on the stage of the Palace Theater here.

The new members are George (Kid) Woodruff, captain and star quarterback of Georgia's 1911 football team; the late Morton Hodgson Sr., Georgia's first four-letter athlete; Chick Shiver, captain and all-America end in 1927; Tom Nash, all-America end in 1927, and Spurgeon Chandler, triple-threat halfback in 1929-30-31 and baseball's most valuable player as pitcher with the New York Yankees in 1943.

Master of ceremonies will be Abit Nix of Athens. Bill Munday, Atlanta, of CBS-TV, will eulogize the honorees. —WYNN.

Gilreath Places Third Among Snipes

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 8.—Francis Seavy of Clearwater, the Florida champion, won the first heat today in the midwinter snipe sailing championships here. Seavy finished the six-mile race in an hour and 29 minutes, about 100 yards ahead of a fellow townsman, Morris Whitney.

Whitney fought a running battle with the next three men. Harold Gilreath, Atlanta, was third; Frank Levison, Clearwater, fourth; and Terry Wittemore, the western hemisphere champion from Naugatuck, Conn., fifth.

Other leaders were (in order): Carlos Rodriguez, Miami; Pete Leach, Oshkosh, Wis.; Craig Doennecke, Tulsa, Okla.; John Hawward, Clearwater; and Carl Zimmerman, Akron, Ohio.

Two more heats will be sailed tomorrow, with the fourth Thursday, and the final race Friday.

Smith Ties McMillen for Links Medal

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 8.—Grace DeMoss Smith of Miami and Marjorie Lindsay McMillen of Decatur, Ill., finalists a year ago, tied for medal honors today in the 27th annual Florida East Coast golf tournament.

Mrs. Smith, the defending champion, needed only a par 4 on the final hole to beat Mrs. McMillen in the qualifying round. But after chipping from the fringe to within three feet of the pin, she stroked a putt that went straight for the cup, rode the rim and hung there.

Mrs. Smith carded 39-38—77 and Mrs. McMillen 41-36—77. Men's par for the 6,485-yard Ponce de Leon course is 87-35—72.

A brisk, cold wind whipped across the course from the northeast and helped boost scores. Only three of the field of 72 broke 80.

Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore, runnerup in the South Atlantic Tournament last week, had 40-39—79.

MS Alumni Plan Centennial Party

The Michigan State Alumni of Georgia will celebrate Michigan State's 100th anniversary with dinner Friday evening. Social hour is at 6:30 p.m. with dinner at 7:30.

Dr. James Steele, president of the state's Michigan State Alumni, invites all Big Ten Alumni to join the Michigan State centennial celebration. For reservations call CH. 4607.

California, NBA Continue Pre-Fight Squabbling

Tonight's Bantamweight Battle Not Billed for Title—But It Is

SAN FRANCISCO, March 8.—The California Athletic Commission, it appeared tonight, may have kept an ace buried in its bantamweight game with the National Boxing Assn.

A fortnight ago the commission refused flatly to sanction tomorrow night's 118-pound class bout between Raul Macias of Mexico and Chamrean Songkitrat of Thailand as a world championship fight. It agreed, though, to permit the men to fight 12 rounds instead of 15 at the Cow Palace, provided it was not advertised as a title match.

Then the NBA, in concert with co-promoters Bennie Ford and the International Boxing Club, stepped in. It would, said the NBA, recognize the winner as world champion with Pres. Tony Petronella personally giving him a belt symbolic of the title. And, to prove his group's sincerity, Petronella flew in from his Rhode Island home Saturday bringing the ribboned belt in a jeweler's case.

But tonight the commission indicated it still had an ace. It might, was the report, refuse to permit Petronella to get into the ring for the presentation before a national television audience since it wasn't recognizing the championship status of the bout.

Petronella, unperturbed by the hassle, said he'd do his duty in the winner's dressing room if necessary.

"But," he added, "I don't think it will do much for international good will if people in other countries learn that the state of California refused to permit the winner to be acknowledged in the open. Whoever wins the fight will be the best bantamweight in the world."

The two fighters, ranked 1-2 as contenders for the title held by Robert Cohen of France until the NBA took it away for failure to defend within 90 days, loafed today. Macias, who worked 54 rounds to Songkitrat's 14 against sparring partners in downtown gymnasiums, ruled a 2-1 favorite.

The fight is expected to draw some 8,000 fans and a $35,000 gate. The television, over CBS, will start at 10 p.m. (EST).

A CLEARER CHARGE-BLOCK RULE?

Mundorff Says Refs Are Better; Films, Official 'Teams' Will Help

(Everybody's been complaining about basketball officiating this year. The Constitution has already polled Southeastern Conference coaches for their major gripes and suggestions. Now, in the last of a three-part series, SEC basketball coordinator Roy Mundorff tells what his office is doing to improve officiating.)

By LARRY FOX
Basketball officiating in the Southeastern Conference has improved this year, SEC basketball coordinator Roy Mundorff maintains—and he has plans to see that it gets even better.

This was Mundorff's first full year as SEC Commissioner Bernie Moore's basketball representative. He traveled throughout the conference, saw every full-time official in action at least twice.

Mundorff talked to both officials and coaches on these trips and is currently working on his yearly report to the commissioner. "Right now, I'm going over the coaches' grading sheets on officials," he said Tuesday. "And do you know that the average grades are higher this year than last?"

Mundorff said just the fact that someone from the commissioner's office was on hand and interested in basketball helped perk up the officiating.

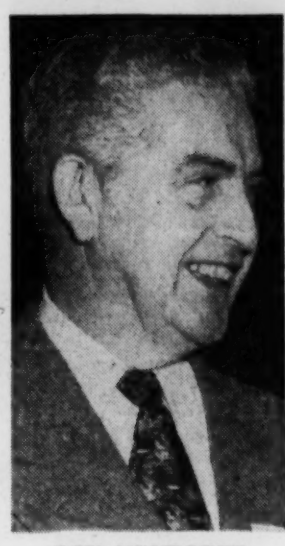

However, neither coaches polled by The Constitution nor fans appeared completely satisfied with the officiating this year—improved though it may be—and the next question was, "What's on tap for next season?"

"We are constantly striving to improve," Mundorff said. "And one important thing I hope to get over is a good interpretation of the charge-block rule."

Mundorff, a former president of the National Basketball Coaches' Assn., said he also intends to recommend to the commissioner that officials be assigned by pairs next season. "If two men work well together, they should be kept together," he said.

Mundorff said that movies would definitely be used at the next officials' clinic to lend realism to rules demonstrations. "It will be up to the coaches at schools that take movies of their games to lend us the films," Mundorff said, "and we hope they will then show us what they feel are examples of correct and incorrect calls in different situations."

"It will be up to the coaches at schools that take movies of their games to lend us the films," Mundorff said, "and we hope they will then show us what they feel are examples of correct and incorrect calls in different situations."

Use of movies were one of the main requests by coaches. Mundorff said he also would recommend use of a gun to signal the end of periods rather than the automatic buzzer. Several incidents have taken place because of controversies around the halftime or final buzzer and if the timer had to shoot off a gun manually, he would have to be more alert, Mundorff indicated.

The crusade for younger officials, asked by some coaches, is up to the coaches themselves, Mundorff said, since they vote on the officials.

However, the veteran cage observer feels that young officials aren't always the answer. "An important item in basketball officiating is something I call poise," Mundorff said, "and you get that poise only through experience."

An item on the long-range agenda is the improvement of crowd behavior and Mundorff thinks that coaches, despite the trend to strain they're under, could possibly set a better example.

And, looking ahead, Mundorff would like to see rules put in to clarify some of the decisions an official must make and also to cut down on a lot of the fouling. He thinks the 24-second rule or a rule allowing the fouled team if on offense to keep the ball whether the shot is made or not, would help.

But the picture is brightening, Mundorff says. "Basketball is a game of fierce pressure," he says, "and that pressure continues unabated through the game. It's no wonder some coaches get excited. But with the great cooperation I've received this year, I'm sure the officiating will look up as we go along."

'Raider' Pasquel Dies In Mexican Crash

Lured 18 U.S. Stars South Before Empire Collapsed

MEXICO CITY, March 8 (AP)—Jorge Pasquel, multi-millionaire Mexican sportsman whose 1946 raids on the big leagues led to a court battle over baseball's reserve clause, was killed last night when his private plane crashed in the San Luis Potosi mountains.

Five others, including the pilot, co-pilot, two mechanics and Pasquel's personal barber, also died in the crash.

The dapper Pasquel, who with his four brothers inherited a small fortune and ballooned it into more than 60 million dollars, was a close friend of political leaders and movie stars but his principal fame came from his baseball raids in 1946.

As president of the Mexican league, he moved north of the border with pockets bulging and lured some of the major leagues' biggest stars into the "outlaw" circuit. In all, eighteen players from the big leagues jumped their ties in the U.S. and went to Pasquel's lush orchard. They drew automatic five-year suspensions from A.B. (Happy) Chandler, then baseball commissioner.

Pasquel, whose main fortune came from a diamond importing business, also made fabulous offers to American stars which were rejected.

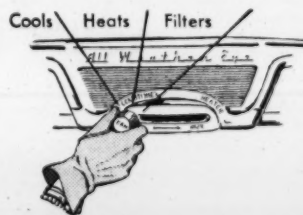

In the next couple of years the Pasquel brothers saw their little baseball empire crumble as a result of internal squabbles and court suits for breach of contract.

Meanwhile, the United States players, disillusioned, went into American courts in an effort to get reinstatement.

On June 5, 1949, Chandler unexpectedly announced in Washington that he was opening the doors for reinstatement of the banished players. The jumpers flocked back into the big league payrolls.

Grey Knights Face Building Year, Meet Fulton in 'Drill' Tomorrow

By MICKEY LOGUE

Dave Baldwin, '54 third baseman turned shortstop in '55, will be the lone returning starter from last year's Grey Knight baseball team taking the field when Grady meets Fulton in a practice scrap Thursday.

However, Baldwin, one of the two seniors expected to open, gives Coach Harry Strickland, in his freshman year at Grady, a firm foundation on which to build. Although seldom disturbing the fences, Baldwin hovered around the .350 mark last year and is a solid glove man.

"We hope Baldwin transmits last season's winning spirit to this year's club," Strickland said. Grady compiled a 10-2 record and made a chase for the City championship in '54.

Strickland, who was at Roosevelt for two years as varsity basketball and B team coach, succeeds Harry Carroll, who is in the Army.

"We expect to win our share of games, but we're in a rebuilding program and probably won't figure in the championship picture," the ex-Georgia Teachers' College basketball and baseball player said of the Grey Knight prospects.

Three juniors, George Heall, Jewel Grayson and Parks Turner form the nucleus of Strickland's mound corps. Jerry Burrows, a 6-3 senior who didn't play in '55, is counted on for relief duty. Heall, a righthander, won five and lost one for the Bees. Turner, a 6-2, 175-pound football halfback, has impressed Strickland with his offerings in early sessions. He transferred from

BOATS, BOATS, EVERYWHERE AND NOT A DROP OF WATER

By BILL ALLEN

If you're one of the boat-happy citizen of the most water-mad state in the union, then you're drawn this week to the city auditorium boat show where you'll find yourself reliving that first carousel ride when everything seemed like a dream.

If you don't care about boats, you're in the minority.

The exhibits are free, and it's not like a store, where you might get "sold." These people are mostly the manufacturers and designers of the boats, and they just want to brag about them.

Maybe you think you don't want to buy a boat this year, but odds are you will this year or next year, according to business surveys.

The speedsters and the cruisers get most attention. There is pure longing love in a youth's eyes as he leans, dreaming, into a swift model's cockpit.

There is the wonder of a wife who sees a cruiser powered by huge, quiet, green monster of an outboard that she can start by pressing a button, and which runs at full speed so quietly you can hear all over the boat, and no vibrations, the exhibitor says.

A rustic who spends his hours on Ol' Turbulence, the Chattanooga, finds a skiff made of aluminum in the same shape as his board and tar beauty that sank last year—and cost more. It won't sink, though.

Over there, just for the heck of it, everyone gets a gander at a $10,000 model, with in-board supercharged marine power plant. Maybe one out of a hundred could buy it, but they love to feel it, see it, so they can, maybe describe it in a wild tale about a non-existent cruise.

There's a convertible attracting the duck and pony tail bob set, guaranteed to open any eye, with chrome ribbed canvas top that can be removed, or relaxed.

And, arguments bubble up between anglers who have never seen one another before, one set bragging on the shiny aluminum jobs that "never wear out or need painting" and another group who claim wooden craft are "less noisy."

If you have time (there's so much to see), an exhibitor will take you through the process of building one of these golden, white and glistening craft. If you don't want a boat, you can

Macon Is Basketball Capital As B, C Boys Meet for Title

Perry Seeks Fourth Crown

By CHARLIE ROBERTS
Constitution Sports Writer

MACON, March 8—Macon becomes the basketball capital of Georgia for the second week in a row, starting Wednesday, and the walls of the city auditorium will be reverberating from 4 o'clock that afternoon until almost midnight Saturday.

The occasion is the state Class B and C boys' high school basketball tournament. The B division dates back all the way to 1926 when Atlanta Tech High won the first one. The C division began building up tradition in 1934 when Nelson carted home the first trophy over roads that were not the concrete ribbons of today.

There have been 29 B champions since the start, 21 C titlists. So the oddity in this year's 21-team meeting—11 in C,

STATE B-C BOYS FAIRINGS
(At Macon's City Auditorium)
WEDNESDAY—4 p.m. Union Point vs. Pits (Class C); 5:15, Valley Point vs. Bradwell Institute of Hinesville (B); 6:30, Brewton vs. Talbot County of Talbot (C); 7:45, Tate vs. East Crisp (C); 9:00, Perry vs. Conners (B).
THURSDAY—12 noon, Pine Log vs. Union Point-Perry winner (C); 1:15, Lakeland vs. Union County of Blairsville (B); 2:30, Dawsonville vs. Brewton-Talbot winner (C); 3:45, Thomson vs. Valley Point-Hinesville winner (B); 4:00, Portal vs. McRae-Helena (C); 5:15, Howdon vs. Perry-Conners winner (B); 8:30, Damascus vs. Tate-East Crisp winner (C); 9:45, Hahira vs. Sandersville (B).

10 in B—is that Perry is the only school in the lot that has ever copped a state diadem.

The quintets all commute to the big meet with sparkling records. And it is anyone's guess as to which teams should be rated as favorites. If one were forced to make a wild guess, he'd probably go along with East Crisp, Damascus or McRae-Helena in Class C, and with Lakeland, Thomson or Perry in B with Hahira an outstanding darkhorse possibility.

Billy Pafford's Lakeland lads finished with 34 victories, no defeats as Ralph Berryhill stuffed the nets at an average per-game output of 27 points. Hahira, which once led Lakeland in the fourth quarter, lost only twice, both times to Lakeland.

Coach Proctor Allen's East Crisps won 34 of 37 games, including among victories several over A and B teams, and currently have worked out a 24-game winning skein. McRae-Helena, coached by Lawrence Mountjoy, has a stout leader in Capt. Don Harbin and a well-balanced team.

Damascus, under Bill Cooper, has copped 77 decisions, lost 11 in three years. This year the Lions went 28-2. Harold Phillips,

Lakeland Risks Unbeaten Mark

Joe Womble and Billy Mock, all six-feet-plus, team with five-niners Lloyd Killebrew and Tyner Cooper to make Hahira one of the strongest defensive teams in Georgia.

OUTFIELD—Jack Brady, Eddie Brannon, Freddie White, Marshall Bloom, Don MacIntyre, Ed Friend.

has the inside track as catcher. But 6-foot junior Tom Smith is still very much in the race for a starting position.

At first base a hot duel is waging between Ed McConkey and 6-5 Lester Brun. James Gardner, a first-stringer in basketball, seems to have second base to himself after a season in the Havalanta League last summer.

Two juniors, '54 B-teamer Larry Dobbs and Morris Socloff, are top third base contenders.

In the outfield Jack Brady, Eddie Brannon, Freddie White, Marshall Bloom, Don MacIntyre and Ed Friend are a half-dozen juniors who have made known their ambitions for a first-string position.

Golf for All Smile, Club Heavers! You May Be the Best

By Bert Prather

Club throwing on an unorganized basis still thrives wherever golf is played. Let an otherwise calm and collected citizen dub a shot or blow a one-foot putt and wham, he is liable to send the "faultry" stick flying into the woods or water if a lake happens to be handy.

Temperamental Tommy Bolt is probably the most publicized club heaver among the big-time pros. Thomas has broken or thrown so many clubs following a bad shot that his fellow pro travelers call him "Thunder" Bolt.

But unless you are among the old timers, betcha didn't know that Harry Stephens, former Druid Hills Golf Club pro, actually staged an organized club-throwing tournament at the old Dogwood layout back in August of 1936.

Harry got tired of watching the boys giving vent to their emotions without any apparent gain, so he booked a tournament, giving golf balls as prizes to the ones who excelled in various phases of club tossing.

The winnain in the throw for distance was a gent by the name of Randolph Timmerman, who hurled one 61 yards. Ned Roberts won the left-handed championship with a heave of 50 yards. In the accuracy test, Jimmy Etheridge was tops, missing the assigned target just 7 feet, 6 inches. Dr. Julius Hughes, who was then the City Amateur champ, won the altitude contest, hurling a one iron over a 60-foot pine tree. Jesse Draper won the prize for being the most stylish thrower and Jock Bothamley was best at throwing a club back over his head.

Maybe President Russell Gill of Atlanta Golf Association is overlooking a good bet. Revival of this tourney might bring out some youngsters who could break these records.

Jimmy Livingstone Tommy Bates Hobart Manley Jr. Charley Black Jr.

CHIP SHOTS: Candler Park pro Jim Yates believes his star pupil, Mrs. Janet Holland, will be heard from soon in local golfing circles. Started playing last August, now does Candler in 42. Jim also taught Irene Aden, the present City Handicap champ. . . Griffin Golf Club will be host to a mixed Scotch two-ball tournament Sunday, March 20. Entries may be made with Bo Dempsey, Griffin pro. . . AWGA members will hold a luncheon and business meeting next Tuesday at East Lake Country Club. East Lake WGA has booked a meeting for Friday, March 18.

Roy McCollum aced No. 14 at North Fulton, his first. . . Bob Nolan and J. A. Womack Jr. divided blind bogey honors at West End GC Sunday with 75s. Wilbur Owen picked up second with a 73. . . Understand Mary Lena Faulk, who recently turned pro, will become a Spalding staffer. . . Press release from Aiken, S.C., called Savannah amateur Hobart Manley Jr. a "darkhorse" entry in the Aiken Open. Maybe the writer should take a look at the Manley trophy room. . . Westminster star Tommy Bates wants to go to Duke. Dumpy Hagler, Duke golf coach, please note.

C. E. Bailey used a six iron to collect himself an ace on the 161-yard second hole at Jimmy Livingstone's American Legion Golf Club. R. L. Wilson and K. L. Sharfley were in on the show. . . Charley Black Jr. defeated Bobby Marsden, 1-up, in the 36-hole finals of the 1954 (that's correct) Peachtree Golf Club championship last Sunday. This is the third Peachtree title for Charley.

NEW YORK, March 8 (AP)—The University of San Francisco, acclaimed the nation's No. 1 college basketball team in the final regular season Associated Press poll, faced tough sledding today as the Dons attempted to prove their rating in the NCAA basketball championship tournament.

Kentucky, which held the top ranking from the third week in December until derailed by Georgia Tech, was close behind San Francisco as ballots from 171 of the nation's sports writers and sportscasters were tallied. A year ago Kentucky ruled No. 1 at the regular season's close.

HIS DEPARTMENT: RBI's

Dropo Is Marion's First Baseman If He Shows That 1950 Flash

TAMPA, Fla., March 8 (AP)—Walter Dropo, the Chicago White Sox' new cleanup hitter, is on the biggest spot of his baseball career but the ponderous first baseman said today he welcomes it.

Walt Dropo

Former Detroit Tiger Dropo, with four straight mediocre years following a brilliant 1950 season when he drove home 144 runs and powered 34 drives out of the park, realizes this is the year he must produce—or else. He has been told bluntly the White Sox are counting on him to fulfill the responsibility of the important No. 4 spot in the lineup.

As the Sox' big right-handed power threat, he's simply got to drive in the runs or give way to somebody else at first base. And manager Marty Marion has three other first basemen—Ronnie Jackson, Phil Cavarretta and rookie

Jim Marshall—itching to get their feet on the bag.

"I know how much Marion is counting on me," Dropo said earnestly, "and I don't intend to let him down."

"A big fellow like myself must play every day to do either himself or his team any good. The record books show I was in 107 games with Detroit last year but that includes pinch-hit appearances and part-time duty. In all, I played 70 full games and I batted in 44 runs. I would start against left-handers and as soon as we would stage a rally, the other team would come in with a right-hander and out I'd go for a pinch-hitter."

Dropo has been told he won't have to worry about building up a high batting average. His chief responsibility will be to drive in the runs. He is expected to hit around 25 home runs and drive in better than 100.

Obstructor of Jury Probe Can Be Seized, Judge Says

Any person who obstructs a grand jury's investigations may be arrested and brought into court, a new Fulton County Grand Jury was told Tuesday.

Fulton Superior Judge Claude D. Shaw charged the March-April term jury, scheduled to investigate county government, it should report to the court the name of any person who obstructs the jury's inquiries.

The judge added that grand juries may use whatever force necessary to enter any institution which closes its doors to a grand jury.

The new body followed a jury which confined most of its inquiries to operations of the Atlanta Municipal Airport.

Explaining the jury's new duties, Judge Shaw said the March and September term juries normally are required to look into county affairs such as the records of the county treasurer, ordinary and clerk of Superior Court.

It also must inspect all public buildings and other property, check the sanitary condition of jails, and scrutinize pension rolls for recipients of "doubtful" eligibility, Judge Shaw said.

He emphasized the jury should report any instance where it finds a public official has failed to do his duty.

The judge also called the jury's attention to laws on gaming, narcotics, deadly weapons and inspection of orphanages and asylums.

Officers of the new jury are Sam North of 3834 N. Stratford Rd., NE, foreman; N. H. Schmitt of 3837 Peachtree-Dunwoody Rd., NE, assistant foreman; Robert E. Martin of 381 Brentwood Dr., NE, secretary; and W. R. Massengale Jr., 33 Golf Cir., NE, assistant secretary.

Griffin Applauds University

ATHENS, March 8 (AP)—Georgia's intellectual heritage we have all benefited from its university system received, directly or indirectly, are so many and varied it is impossible to evaluate them in dollars and cents, Governor Griffin declared Tuesday night.

In a speech for delivery at the annual banquet of the Athens Chamber of Commerce, the governor lavished praise on the university officials and the Board of Regents for the educational standards they have maintained.

"Although I am not an alumnus of the university," he said, "I have seen the fine leadership in all parts of the state which is provided by men and women who went to school at this great institution."

"During my lifetime I have seen this university and the other colleges in the university system grow and expand each year. Assuredly, all the people in our state can be proud of the cultural and

Abel Replaces Hardwicke in 'King David'

Walter Abel has been engaged to replace Sir Cedric Hardwicke as narrator for the "King David" performance which will close the Atlanta Symphony season March 28.

Sir Cedric informed the symphony management he could not be here because he has to be in Hollywood for the filming of a new movie.

Abel has had the role many times with the Philadelphia Orchestra under Eugene Ormandy.

Soloists in the Honneger work will be Beverly Wolff, mezzo-soprano; Frances Hughes, soprano, and John Moulson, tenor. The Atlanta Symphony Chorus, under direction of Haskell Boyter, will sing the choral parts.

Doctor Hits At Verdict In Appeal

An unusual legal maneuver for Savannah courts was filed at Savannah Tuesday when Dr. Paul Nelson Fleming, plaintiff in $6,000.000 suits against 12 other Savannah doctors, asked the court for a judgment in his favor despite the verdict of a jury.

The motion for judgment was filed by Marvin O'Neal Jr., Atlanta, attorney for Dr. Fleming, who at the same time filed a conventional motion for new trial of the suits. Judge Edwin A. McWhorter of the superior court, who presided at the trial, set hearing on the motions for May 30.

O'Neal had moved for a directed verdict in favor of the plaintiff at the conclusion of the trial. The motion was overruled by the court. It was upon this fact that the motion for judgment was based.

If sustained, this motion would provide judgment for the plaintiff with compensation to be set by a jury. The trial jury turned Dr. Fleming down in all of his claims against the defendant doctors, whom he accused of conspiracy to limit his practice by barring him from the Warren A. Candler Hospital.

The defendants denied any malice and said they were only doing their duty in their investigation of alleged wrong doings of Dr. Fleming.

The motion for new trial, to be amended later to include details, merely cited that the verdict of the jury was contrary to the evidence.

Prizes totaling $600 will be presented the leading FFA producers in the four vocational districts and the state by T. H. Bonner, state manager of the Chilean Nitrate Educational Bureau.

Ala. Company Is Low On Watts Bar Span

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 8 (AP)—Blount Bros. Construction Co. of Montgomery, Ala., has submitted the low bid for construction of a highway bridge across Watts Bar Dam near Spring City, Tenn., the Tennessee Valley Authority announced today.

The TVA said the Blount firm bid $1,226,154.50. The Anderson Gregory Co., Inc., of Nashville, with a proposal of $288,941.66, was low bidder on construction of the approaches to the bridge, the TVA said.

Judge Sees Youth Detention Home Inadequate

Fulton County's Juvenile Court detention home will be completely inadequate within the next five years.

That's the opinion of Juvenile Judge W. W. Woolfolk who says that increases in child population indicates there will be 50 per cent more children requiring detention by 1950.

Judge Woolfolk wrote in the Juvenile Court's annual report, soon to be published, that if the number of delinquents increases along with population, the court may have to detain more children daily than the facility will now accommodate.

Study of the population charts showing the number of Fulton County children nine through 16 indicates "our peakload for detention will be more than one hundred per day at times," the judge said.

The daily average of children held during 1954 for correction was 42, the report said.

"We must start preparing now to meet the problems that will be caused by the high birth rate and tremendous increase in child population," the judge declared.

The detention facility, located on the upper floors of the court building on Central Ave., SW, has a total capacity of 66 beds, divided into four sections, the report said.

A total of 1,287 children were held in detention at the home last year for correctional treatment.

During a large part of the year, however, the facility was overcrowded "due to the increase in the more serious offenses committed by children who are in need of detention services," Judge Woolfolk pointed out.

Study of the problem was discussed Monday by the Juvenile Court Advisory Board, the judge said. The board suggested that it should make recommendations on a new facility after a careful study of needs, he added.

Judge Woolfolk said the board members felt the new home should be planned so that it might not have to be abandoned in the future because of a need for more space. The new detention home should be planned so additions can readily be made, it added.

Thousand Bushel Corn Club Slated

Cotton Producers Assn., in cooperation with the Georgia Agricultural Extension Service, and in the interest of improving corn-growing practices throughout the state, will sponsor a 1,000-Bushel Corn Club starting this year.

The 1,000-Bushel Club will honor farmers who produce high, economical yields of corn on large areas. J. R. Johnson, extension agronomist for the University of Georgia, said farmers who produce 1,000 bushels of corn on 12 acres or less will be recognized under the new program.

Members of the new 1,000-Bushel Corn Club will receive certificates and keys. They will be feted at a dinner following the corn harvest.

The yield determination must be on the farmer's entire corn acreage, officials said. The acreage must be listed with the county agent. Johnson pointed out that the cost per bushel must not exceed the average market value for the first 10 months of the year the corn is produced.

Complete records will be furnished by each member, giving the variety planted, width of rows, spacing of plants, amount of fertilizer, number of cultivations and other information.

Records of those qualifying for the new club will be used by the Extension Service to help all Georgia farmers increase their corn yields, as has been done with the 100-Bushel Club. County agents have used records of the 2,819 one hundred-bushel producers since the program was started in 1947 in making recommendations to their farmers.

CFA will continue to sponsor the 100-Bushel Club this year. This club honors those farmers who produce 100 or more bushels per acre. They will receive certificates and attend the dinner also.

Woman Accountants Hear Talk on Pensions

Seventy members of the Atlanta chapter of the American Society of Woman Accountants Tuesday night heard Samuel A. Tinkler Jr. speak on "Pensions and Profit Sharing Plans."

Tinkler told the group that any pension or profit sharing plan should be set up with a view toward (1) simplicity of operation, (2) efficiency of administration and (3) guidance from experienced trust specialists.

Tinkler is assistant trust officer at the Trust Company of Georgia.

Griffin Honorary Chief Of Savings Bond Drive

Gov. Griffin accepted appointment Tuesday as honorary state chairman of the U.S. Savings Bond Program and pledged the cooperation of his administration in the continuing savings campaign.

As Griffin was appointed by Humphrey, he was informed that Georgians bought nearly $11,000,000 worth of savings bonds during January and February of this year.

"All of us realize the tremendous importance of buying savings bonds, both to our nation and to the individual purchasers," the governor said. "There is no better investment. . . . It is a pleasure for me to serve along with such able Georgia leaders as Jackson P. Dick, C. E. Woolman, Robert Lynch and other volunteer bond workers."

"We are cooperating in the state government by making available into a law a bill extending the unemployment insurance coverage. It will apply to firms which employ a minimum of four persons. Heretofore, the insurance was for firms employing a minimum of eight. Twelve thousand additional firms were brought under the program."

The Governor Tuesday also signed bills to permit the State Office Building Authority to construct a new State Patrol headquarters; authorize limited access highways; revise the laws against starting forest fires, and regulate structural pest control firms.

Hollingsworth also told Griffin that Humphrey has said he hopes next time President Eisenhower comes to Georgia to hunt quail on the treasury secretary's plantation at Thomasville.

Arraignment Off; Parents Not Notified

Arraignment of an Atlanta's 20-year-old son on a murder charge was blocked Tuesday by a Florida law which requires parents to accompany defendants under 21 to the courtroom in such arraignments.

The boy, George Lowell Everett of Dothan, Ala., was indicted in the slaying of a 21-year-old housewife in her Panama City, Fla., home Jan. 18. Everett signed a statement in which he said he stabbed, strangled and raped the woman when she caught him burglarizing her home, police said.

At the beginning of a scheduled arraignment in Panama City, Circuit Court Judge E. Clay Lewis Jr. asked where Everett's parents were, and Everett's attorney said they had not been notified.

The parents are separated. The father, F. L. Everett, lives at 1001 Curran St., NW. The mother, Mrs. C. E. Ferrell, lives in Columbus.

The judge postponed the arraignment indefinitely.

'Peter Pan' Transports Millions to Never Land

BY JACK GOULD
New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution
NEW YORK, March 8—Surely there was a trace of fairy dust from coast to coast Tuesday morning, Monday's television presentation of Mary Martin as "Peter Pan" was a joy!

The two-hour production of the musical based on the Barrie play, presented over the National Broadcasting Co.'s network (WSB-TV in Atlanta) from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock, was an unforgettable evening of Video Theater.

Who could say whether the TV premiere was more wondrous than the Broadway opening? It is unimportant anyway. But in millions of homes entire families were transported to Never Land and saw "Peter Pan" in the happiest of circumstances: in the company of children. There just weren't any old people looking at TV Monday night.

"Peter Pan" was the first Broadway production to be taken intact before the television cameras and the single TV performance reportedly cost at least $400,000 to present. It was worth every penny.

From the opening scene of Miss Martin flying through space—and what a sublime technical feat that flying is—"Peter Pan" was a combination of sheer make-believe and broad nonsense that could only bring squeals of delight from young viewers staying up past their normal bedtime.

The musical version of the classic admittedly takes considerable liberty with the original. Viewed literally, the purist might question some of the superimposed whimsy and slapstick. But fish-tosh, Miss Martin—and let it not be forgotten a moment longer, Cyril Ritchard—are free

SUDDEN DECISION?

Philip Morris, Lucy Breaking Up

By VAL ADAMS

New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution
NEW YORK, March 8—The sponsor who started I Love Lucy on television will sever its connection with the program.

It was learned today that Philip Morris & Co., Ltd., Inc., currently an alternate-week sponsor of one of TV's most popular programs, will drop out entirely at the end of this season.

The General Foods Corporation will be the new alternate-week sponsor of I Love Lucy next fall. The other advertiser sharing sponsorship with Philip Morris is the Procter & Gamble Co. No information was available about the latter company's plans for next season.

General Foods also will be alternate-week sponsor of the I Love Lucy summer replacement, which will begin either in late June or early July over the Columbia Broadcasting System network. It will be presented on Mondays from 9 to 9:30 p.m.

The summer show has not been selected, but it will be a film series made by Desilu Productions. This is the company headed by Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz, the stars of I Love Lucy.

The Philip Morris action ends an association that began Oct. 15, 1951, when I Love Lucy made its debut under the sole sponsorship of the tobacco company. Although the show has dominated popularity ratings, it is no secret that "Lucy" has not been as great a sales aid for the sponsor's product as had been hoped.

Philip Morris agreed a few months ago to give up half of its sponsorship of I Love Lucy and also "Public Defender," another television program. The decision to drop "Lucy" entirely may have come suddenly. In late December, CBS announced Philip Morris and Procter & Gamble had signed a contract extension to keep the show running through September 1957.

a strong link in southern progress

As we move into 1955 another strong link is added to the chain of Southern progress. Hardly a county, town or village in this fast-growing area is without its own success story—new industry, improved farming, higher income, astounding economic growth.

Life Insurance Company of Georgia is building, too — keeping pace with this dynamic spirit of growth throughout the South. Through its own program of expansion, Life of Georgia is constantly enlarging its facilities, providing broader life insurance plans and increasing its services to meet the growing needs of the South.

A-Weapons To Retaliate, Dulles Warns Peiping

Rejects Peace at Any Price; Says Force To Meet Force

would fight to prevent Communist capture of the offshore islands. Wilson's reply was that the President would know whether or not to defend these positions.

Dulles took his radio and television audience on a tour of the troubled Asian horizon, retracing his two-week trip to seven countries—Burma, Cambodia, Formosa, Laos, the Philippines, Thailand and Vietnam.

WILLINGNESS

Brave words and patriotism alone, he said, cannot preserve the freedom and independence of the small nations on Communist China's doorstep. The essential ingredients, Dulles added, are "the deterrent power of the United States and our willingness to use that power in response to a military challenge."

He said that Peiping seems determined to make such a challenge. The Communists at the same time are persistently trying to belittle the power of the United States and to cast doubt on its resolution, Dulles said.

Their propaganda portrayed the United States as a "paper tiger," one that "will always find reasons to fall back when faced by brutal and uncompromising power," Dulles said.

He cited Peiping's boasts of victory over the West in Korea, Indochina and in the bloodless evacuation of the Tachens by the Nationalist Chinese. While acknowledging that the United States has made great sacrifices and shown great restraint in the interests of peace, Dulles suggested that it might be unsafe for Peiping to assume "that our love of peace means peace at any price."

"We must, if occasion offers, make it clear that we are prepared to stand firm and, if necessary, meet hostile forces with the greater forces that we possess," he declared.

He described as a "big step in the right direction" the congressional resolution that endowed President Eisenhower's authority to defend Formosa and the Pescadores with the force of United States arms. Dulles said that action, more than any other recent step, had inspired confidence among free Asians.

FORTITUDE

"We have power that is great," he asserted. "We have a cause that is just. I do not doubt that we have the fortitude to use that power in defense of that just cause."

"If that will be manifest, then I believe that peace and freedom will prevail."

In the case of Formosa, he said, the question is not what to defend but how to defend it. He pointed out that by the terms of the recently ratified mutual defense treaty with Nationalist China, as well as the congressional resolution, the United States was committed to defend Formosa and the outlying Pescadores Islands.

The resolution, however, permitted a flexible defense not necessarily confined to Formosa and the Pescadores themselves, Dulles said.

"How to implement this flexible defense of Formosa the President will decide," he said, indicating that Eisenhower would weigh the military and psychological value of the offshore islands such as Quemoy and Matsu against the cost of holding them.

He expressed the hope that Communist China's military activities are not the first stage of an attack against Formosa and that a cease-fire might be attained. Up to now, however, the efforts of the United Nations and of friendly nations to "find substance for these hopes" have been unrewarding, Dulles said.

Peiping seems determined to conquer Formosa, he declared, and the response of the United States to such a move "will have importance both to Formosa itself and to all the Southeast Asia and Pacific countries."

Appearing earlier in the day before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Dulles made three principal points about the outlook on Formosa:

NO BARGAIN COUNTER

The United States is not trying to use Quemoy and Matsu as bargaining counters for a cease-fire.

Apart from new gun emplacements on the mainland facing Quemoy, there are no signs of a Communist military build-up of the size that would be needed for an invasion attempt.

The pattern of Communist air operations up to now does not suggest an imminent invasion. Their short-range fighter planes are still limited for the most part to their airfields around Shanghai and Canton, neither of which is close enough to the prospective threatened to prolong the trial by giving defense attorneys additional evidence to try to discredit it.

Testimony that alibi witness George Phillips once was heard to say he didn't know where Fuller was at the time of Patterson's death came from Mrs. J. W. Oakley of Centerville, Ala., wife of a weekly newspaper publisher. Nervous, but unshaken in her story, Mrs. Oakley said she and Phillips, a State Highway Patrol driver's license examiner, discussed the murder while he was on duty at Centerville last September or early in October.

Phillips was assigned temporarily to Phenix City at the time of the slaying. Mrs. Oakley said she remarked during the conversation that she thought Fuller and Arch Ferrell either killed Patterson or knew who did.

HAVING COFFEE

The patrolman replied, according to Mrs. Oakley, that he didn't know where Fuller was but that he was having coffee with Ferrell at the time of the slaying.

Ferrell, who was prosecuting attorney while Fuller was chief deputy sheriff at Phenix City, also is under indictment for the murder along with former Alabama Atty. Gen. Si Garrett. Fuller is the first of the three to be tried.

The story Mrs. Oakley said Phillips told her also conflicts with Ferrell's alibi that he was in his office talking long distance with Garrett in Birmingham the moment Patterson was murdered.

The highway patrolman denied any recollection of the conversation with the publisher's wife. But he did say he had been in the newspaper office during his stay in Centerville.

ANOTHER WITNESS

Earlier today a relative by marriage of the slain Patterson testified he saw Fuller on the street about 7:30 or 7:45 p.m. the night of the murder.

That witness was H. O. Brownlee, a Columbus, Ga., salesman whose daughter married Maurice Patterson, one of the murdered man's sons.

Fuller, testifying in his own defense last Saturday, said he was at home at the time Brownlee said he saw him.

The defendant said he drove from his home to a restaurant for dinner; went straight from the restaurant to the jail and stayed there until after he heard about the shooting.

He said he reached the jail about 8:40 p.m. Patterson was killed at 9:05 p.m.

Dulles, in the closed-door session, was pressed for details of his talks on Formosa last week with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek by Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) and Morse (D-Ore).

His guarded reply evidently did not go much beyond his public statement at the end of the talks.

mer of hope. Possibly we can work this thing out."

Daniel commented:

"There are some worthwhile elements in it. However, we have now analyzed it and we find less to be hopeful about than we anticipated when the company introduced it with great fanfare and lengthy press releases."

"What the company offered Tuesday—with strings attached—will not settle negotiations peacefully, but if it is an honest step forward, we will provide them with an opportunity at our next meeting to prove their sincerity."

F. M. Malone, personnel vice president for Southern Bell, said 45,000 employees—nine of every 10 involved—would get immediate wage increases.

Malone said other employees—those with less than 12 months' service—would receive from one to four increases totaling up to $10.50 per week during the next year. These increases would result from the company's regular "progression schedules," he explained.

"Under the Southern Bell offer, more than 8,000 employees will receive at least $4 per week and over 11,000 women in the business will get $2.50 or more per week," Malone said.

The personnel vice president said all other employees with more than 12 months' service would receive an immediate increase of from $1 to $3.50 per week. In addition, he continued,

Ike Wants To Retire, Butler Says

NEW YORK, March 8 (UP)—Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler said tonight he does not believe President Eisenhower will seek reelection next year but the Democrats will be geared for an all-out effort to defeat him if he does run.

Butler announced after a high-level Democratic conference here with some of his party's possible presidential candidates that he will call a Democratic governors conference in Washington this spring to lay the groundwork for the 1956 campaign.

Details of the conference will be announced shortly, probably on Friday, Butler said.

The party leader, who said he is concentrating on banding the 26 Democratic governors together in a solid political group, was joined by Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan at a news conference preceding a party dinner addressed by Gov. Averell Harriman of New York.

"I feel as Mr. Butler does, that the President does not want to run again for office because of the age factor, the health factor and family factors," Williams said. "I think Mr. Butler has made a good guess on that."

Butler said he has been traveling around the country getting acquainted with important Democrats, particularly governors, and planned to leave soon on a 15-day trip through the Northwest and West to lay groundwork for 1956.

School Racial Bill on Skids In Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 8 (UP)—The Arkansas Senate today virtually killed by amendment a bill designed to maintain racial segregation in the public schools.

The passage of amendments to prevent the racial segregation bill from taking effect until July 1, 1957, means that the Senate can't vote on the bill itself until tomorrow.

Since the House must concur in the amendments, it's possible that the bill now will not have time to complete the legislative process.

The amendments' author, Sen. Max Howell of Little Rock, told reporters he didn't think the bill was killed. He said the amendments were designed to put off the bill until the U.S. Supreme Court could lay down its own rules for integrating the races in the schools.

However, Sen. Fletcher Long of Forrest City, a cosponsor of the original proposal, said the amendment "will kill the bill."

The House-approved measure proposes to set up a complicated system under which the state could assign Negro and white students to separate schools. Any appeal from assignment would have to be carried through six state, school or judicial bodies before it could be taken into federal court.

$800 Million Wages Daily Seen in U.S.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 8 (UP)—The Northwestern National Life Insurance Co. estimated today that paychecks of the nation's wage-earners will total nearly $800,000,000 a day this year.

Of this amount they will spend $645,000,000 a day, pay $90,000,000 a day in taxes and save $65,000,000 a day away in savings.

Find Walls of Jericho Tumbled 23 Times

By KENNETH LOVE
New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution
JERICHO, Jordan, Feb. 26—Twenty-three successive walls of Jericho tumbled down long before Joshua's priests "blew with the trumpets" about 3,300 years ago. A team of British and American archaeologists has discovered the walls.

(Joshua led the Israelite invasion of Canaan in the 14th Century B. C. According to Biblical account, the walls fell "down flat" after Joshua's army had marched around the city once a day for six days and seven times on the seventh day and "all the people" in Joshua's camp had shouted "with a great shout.") This season the archaeologists reached Jericho's earliest known town wall, built on bedrock and buried 50 feet beneath the layered debris of at least 7,000 or 8,000 years of history and pre-history.

The excavation is expected to produce much information about how the old Stone Age nomadic hunters and berry pickers made the transition into Neolithic culture and developed a social organization capable of fortifying and defending a large town.

"Neolithic begins here so far as we know," Miss Kathleen Kenyon, chief of the expedition, said today. "The spring named Elisha's Well, after the disciple Elisha who, according to Biblical account, cured its poisonous waters, enabled the first wild innovators to create an efficient agricultural community with walled defenses here at a period when even the more advanced people in the rest of the world were just beginning to live in unfortified villages."

Miss Kenyon, who is director of the British School of Archaeology in Jerusalem, said Jericho's first wall encircled a town of approximately eight acres. "An efficient agriculture that was certainly dependent on irrigation was needed to support a town of that size," she said. "We don't know whether it was governed by a king or a dictator or democratically, but building a wall means social organization. There were probably no specialized trades or division of labor. But irrigation, which requires a complex and strictly enforced water distribution schedule, means a fairly high level of organization."

Jericho's first wall was constructed of uncut stones and apparently was built against a mud embankment. Its remains, standing to a height of five feet, were used as a foundation for the second wall of identical construction. The two stages rise 17 feet.

The expedition, conducted jointly with the American School of Oriental Research, also of Jerusalem, began work four years ago.

The wall that fell "down flat" before Joshua's invading host has disappeared, Miss Kenyon said. Presumably built of mud bricks at a time when the tell (a mound created by successive human habitations) already had risen in place to a height of 75 feet, it has long since been washed away by rain. All that is left of the Joshua period is the stone foundation of a house at the eastern edge of the tell.

Flint sickles, knives, hide scrapers, awls and arrowheads, stone vessels and stone and bone beads have been unearthed at the level of the first wall. Pottery did not appear until much later

Georgia News Folksy, Jolting

When I hang about the State News Editor's desk, reading over the shoulders of the staff which collects news from all Georgia, I have a hard time deciding which kind of news I like best.

There's always a folksy, country note to beguile you from certain correspondents who specialize in weather and crops. And nearly every batch has a nice homey note like the paragraph the other day about the returned soldier. It ended: "Kin gathered from all over the countryside for the dinner celebration."

Now and then you are jolted by a terse report like the one from Cedartown to the effect that the Junior Welfare League and the Retail Merchants Bureau have decided to discontinue Cedartown's annual Easter parade.

It developed this is a big, organized commercial parade but for a moment there I had a mental picture of them turning back wave after wave of church-bound folks dressed in their Easter finery.

I could hear in my mind's ear the Junior Leaguers and the merchants yelling, "Back! Go back! There'll be no parade this Easter!" But, of course, that's not the case. Cedartown folks will probably dress up just the same April 10, and the big, organized effort is merely being saved for something else.

The news that makes you feel kind of smart and literate, of course, comes from the University of Georgia news bureau where they speak of new books, of art exhibits and of lectures.

The big news in this department is that the University of Georgia Press will publish March 14 a book by Dr. J. Chal Vinson, associate professor of history at the university. The book is called "The Parchment Peace," and deals with the background for the foreign policies established in the twenties.

Dr. Vinson reports on the Washington Conference, which was held in 1921-22 and which was the first important peace conference sponsored by the United States after World War I. It was significant, we are told, "for the aims it established rather than the successes it achieved."

In his research Dr. Vinson made use of the State Department files as well as the private papers of Woodrow Wilson, Joseph Daniels, Charles Evans Hughes, Robert Lansing, William E. Borah, P. C. Knox and John Sharp Williams.

Then, of course, there's news of the university's exhibit now on display in the Museum of Modern Art in New York. This is a provocative note because the way critics—and sometimes reporters—talk of art is often fine-sounding but mysterious.

For instance, I can't figure out exactly what the Georgia artists have designed but The New York Times art critic said it was a "most exciting suggestion for the design of the future." Could it be our young people have come up with a design for the future?

Imagine having the future blue-printed in neat squares and triangles and circles and colored up nicely for your immediate study.

To Be Says

Silk Raincoat To Tuck in Pocket

Long, long ago, when I was a tiny girl, my mother and my aunts used to wear silk raincoats that rustled stiffly in the rain. But the silk was always backed by rubber—that was before the days when our wonderful modern scientists had learned how to make almost any cloth waterproof.

So now we have a modern miracle in raincoats—a thin, elegant, waterproof silk that weighs only 13½ ounces and may be folded up into a little case to tuck in a pocket or handbag when the shower is over. This is made in a simple Balmacean style that fits over any type of costume you may be wearing. What's more, it's made in men's sizes, too.

Takes Drip From Soggy Tea Bags

By MARY DENMARK

Necessity is not always the mother of invention.

Sometimes a wife's criticism serves the same purpose.

Take the case of W. W. Anderson of 4016 Stratford Rd., Northeast.

Mr. Anderson likes tea, but his affinity for the beverage was sorely criticized by Mrs. Anderson.

There was simply no place for the soggy, dripping tea bag. Left in the saucer, it created a puddle that ultimately led to a spotty tablecloth. Left in the cup, it made the tea too strong.

INVENTING
So Mr. Anderson, deciding to do something about the situation, set about inventing a little something to hold the soggy tea bag.

The general idea was to design something that would be both inexpensive and uncomplicated.

Mr. Anderson mulled over the problem for a while, devising and discarding several ideas.

He first tried to work out something to fit under the rim of the saucer, but soon discovered that there wasn't enough room.

"For a while the whole thing seemed rather hopeless," he said, "but I finally got an idea of something I thought would work."

Mr. Anderson contacted Miss Clio Fuller, a ceramist, living on Ponce de Leon place in Decatur.

From the description he gave over the phone she made the first model of the saucerette.

GROOVED TO FIT
The finished product is a curved dish of heavy glazed earthenware, grooved to fit the edge of the saucer. It is scooped out to provide a final resting place for the tea bag.

Patent on the little invention is pending.

Just in case you're a non-tea drinker, the saucerette will also serve as a depository for cigarette ashes, after-dinner mints or used slices of lemon. Not all at the same time, of course.

Saucerettes are available in a variety of colors in local stores. For shopping information call WA. 5050, Ext. 391.

To My Grandma

Because you rocked my daddy

To sleep when he was small,

And hastened to his bedside

Whenever you heard him call,

Because you told him stories,

And fed him bread and jam,

And baked his birthday cakes

And pushed him in his pram,

Because you kissed his tears away

And prayed for him each night,

And in your kind and gentle way

Taught him the wrong from right,

Because I loved him just as you

And because I too now have a son,

You are often in my prayers

When the lonely day is done.

The Dior Dilemma Won't Worry Waves

By BETTY CARROLLTON

At least one group of Atlanta girls has no worry over Dior's dilemma.

Or the latest styles. Their wardrobe problem is solved.

And Navy Blue is the order of every working day.

Good grooming is regulation for the eight Waves based at Atlanta's Naval Air Station. And they like it that way. Their trim uniform is a badge of honor and pride.

While they may be "dry land" sailors, these girls believe they are "filling important assignments essential to maintaining the fleets at sea."

Waves based here are Lucy Martin, Betty Cochran, Christine Jones, Georgia Wagner, Marilyn Fletcher, Jane Parker, Ann Lane and Delores Still.

CHECKING FLIGHTS

Their duties range from operating the switchboard and checking incoming and outgoing flights to stenographic and library work.

They manage to log numerous flying hours, too. The Waves often go along as observers when Navy pilots get in their proficiency flight time. Even more often, they take to the air as passengers for liberty in Florida.

The Waves blushing recall one such trip.

Allowed to wear "civvies" off duty, they donned bluejeans to board a Navy plane for a day's fishing in Panama City.

The ceiling closed in and they were forced to remain in Florida overnight.

"We didn't have a thing to wear—except bluejeans," they recalled.

SEASICK

"We went fishing and four of us got seasick," they moaned laughingly.

Although none of the Waves live on the base, recreational facilities are available to them.

In the recreation room, they can play ping-pong, shuffle board or even shoot a game of pool.

Betty Cochran, who is attached to special services and works in the recreation room, proudly points out the "very fine" library the base boasts.

Betty has been in the Navy a year and a half. She's a student at the Atlanta Division, University of Georgia, majoring in business education.

Lucy Martin of Athens also has 18 months' service. Lucy works in communications, operating the switchboard and teletypes. Singing is Lucy's hobby. Prior to her enlistment, she sang with several bands and in her high school glee club.

OVERSEAS PAY

Ann Lane is the veteran of the group. She's had more than 10 years' duty as a Wave. When Ann's regiment was transferred from boot camp to training school, its members were the only ones to draw overseas pay. Their route carried them through a part of Canada.

Christine Jones works in operations at the base. Her duties entail giving out and taking flight checks from flight service and keeping the pilots' log books.

During her off-duty hours, Christine enjoys fishing and bowling. And she gets in as much flying time as possible.

Christine says her most exciting memory of Navy life is of a flight to Washington, when the plane made a forced landing due to bad weather.

"I won't say I was scared," she chuckled, "but the ground sure looked good!"

Annie Lou Hardy Mrs. Watriss and Sons Expected for Visit Here

A former Atlantan expected for a visit on Monday, March 21, is Mrs. Frederick W. Watriss of Concord, Mass., who will be accompanied by her two young sons, Ricky and James Gilbert.

The trio will be guests for two weeks of Mrs. Watriss' mother, Mrs. Gilbert F. Beers at her home at 97 Brighton Rd. Mrs. Watriss is the former Mary Elizabeth Beers.

MISS WYNN CONARD and Miss Rena Chambers leave Saturday by plane for Miami where they will be guests of the latter's grandmother, Mrs. Howell Hanson, at her winter home on Miami Beach during their spring holidays from Westminster. Entertainment planned for the popular subdebs includes a cruise on the boat belonging to Miss Chambers' parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Chambers Jr.

MRS. CANNON YOUNG left last week for Lady Lake, Fla., where she is the guest of Col. George B. Buell, U.S. Army, Ret., and Mrs. Buell. Mrs. Young last visited the Buells in Frankfurt, Germany, in 1950 when Col. Buell was stationed there for duty.

MISS GRACE WOODS and Miss Ellen Shutze will leave Friday to spend their spring vacation from Westminster at Daytona Beach.

LEAVING MONDAY by plane from Houston, Tex., were Mrs. Frank Player, Mrs. Albert E. Thornton, Mrs. Louis Johnson and Mrs. Cyrus W. Strickler Jr. They are representing the Peachtree Garden Club at the annual convention of the Garden Club of America and are guests at the Shamrock Hotel in Houston.

MONDAY WAS A RED LETTER DAY for Lt. Robert J. Hefner, USN. On that day he was released from active duty after more than two and a half years of Navy service, his engagement to Miss Alice Orem of Norfolk, Va., was announced, and it was his 25th birthday.

Lt. Hefner has arrived from Norfolk, where he has been stationed, to be with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Ralph A. Hefner on McAfee road. His marriage to Miss Orem will take place in June.

MRS. GUY CARPENTER will return Wednesday from a 10-day trip to Mobile and New Orleans. She was joined in Mobile by Mr. Carpenter's sister, Mrs. C. W. Webster of Pelham, N.Y., and they visited Bellingrath Gardens before going on to New Orleans.

Mrs. Carpenter will be accompanied on her return by Mrs. Webster who will be her guest for 10 days. During her absence Mr. Carpenter has been on a fishing trip on the St. John's River near Deland, Fla.

MRS. LANGDON C. QUIN has returned from St. Simons where she spent some time at her cottage on East Beach.

MR. AND MRS. JACK W. RUTLAND returned Sunday to their home in Asheville, N.C., after a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Currie on W. Wesley road.

HOSPITAL NOTES—Mrs. Rodney Cook has returned to her home on Long Island drive, following an illness at Georgia Baptist Hospital.

MRS. ORVILLE CAMP is en route to Saudi Arabia, having left by plane during the weekend to join Mr. Camp there for residence. Mr. Camp, who is associated with the Arabian-American Oil Co., will be in Saudi for the next two years. Mrs. Camp is the former Helen Ann Prather, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Prather.

MISS JANET WHITFIELD and Miss Betty Ann Outland will leave Saturday for Rome to be among the visitors attending the spring formal at Darlington.

A FORMER ATLANTAN, Leonard Graves Jr., who has been singing minor roles in the current hit, "The King and I," ever since its debut on Broadway, will take over the title role for the rest of the run in Chicago.

Mr. Graves will step into the lead from his role of understudy to Yul Brynner who is leaving for Africa for the filming of "The Ten Commandments."

Hint for Lent Old-Fashioned Supper

Make it an old-fashioned supper tonight with limas baked in brown sugar, mustard and garlic. If you like the sharp accent of tomatoes set out a sauce boat of catsup or tomato sauce.

Serve the limas with a crisp cabbage salad, slices of rye bread and a fruit compote for dessert.

LIMA BAKE
2 cups large dry limas 2 tbsps. brown sugar
5 cups water 1/2 tsp. dry mustard
2 tssps. salt 1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 clove garlic (or bacon drippings)

1. Soak beans in water several hours or overnight. 2. Add minced garlic, and simmer until tender (one to 1 1/2 hours). 3. Stir in brown sugar, mustard and seasoning and turn into shallow baking dish. 4. Bake in slow oven (300 degrees) about two hours, or until liquid is thick and top is browned. Serves four to five.

Miss Fisch, Mr. Gallivan To Be Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Carl Fisch announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Joan Clarke Fisch, to James Francis Gallivan of Greenville, S.C.

Their marriage will be solemnized at an early fall ceremony. Miss Fisch was graduated in 1952 from Washington Seminary where she was president of the Pirate Club, a member of the Phi Pi sorority, May Court, Senior Round Table, Tallulah Falls Circle and the Rabun Gap Club. She attended Sweet Briar for two years and is now taking her junior year in France under the Sweet Briar program. She is enrolled for classes at the University of Paris and Sorbonne University.

The bride-elect will return from Europe on July 26.

Mr. Gallivan is the son of Mrs. William S. Fowell and the late Harold F. Gallivan of Greenville.

He was graduated in 1951 from Washington and Lee University where he belonged to the SAE fraternity. He served two years with the U.S. Navy and is now associated with the Alester G. Furman Co. of Greenville where he and his bride will reside.

TO WED IN AUTUMN
Miss Joan Fisch

Buying a Paris Dress Like Buying a Painting

By NAN ROBERTSON

New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution
NEW YORK, March 8—It's easy to buy a Paris dress. All you need is time and money.

Be sure you have plenty of both if you plan to buy at one of the grand couturiers. If you're short of time or money, visit the "boutique," or "little shop" on the ground floor of the big Paris houses.

Prices for couture afternoon dresses and suits by any of the top designers run from $400 to $1,000, depending on the model, with evening gowns usually the most expensive. These range between $500 and $1,000, on the average, but embroidered and beaded dresses can mount to $2,000.

Fittings for couture clothes take from three weeks to a month.

PRICES HALVED

If you buy at the boutique below the gilt-and-mirrored salon, prices for the ready-made clothes there will be halved. The time will be just as long as it takes you to make up your mind on what to buy.

Once you've decided to make the plunge and splurge on an outfit made by someone such as Dior, remember this one taboo: Never ask about prices right off. It just isn't done. Buying a Paris original is like buying a fine painting. If you look seriously at a dress, it's assumed you have the money to buy it.

Now: Where to buy? Here are houses, generally considered to be tops in Paris: Dior, Balenciaga, Fath, Balmain, Chanel, Givenchy, Dessees, Patoux, Griffe, Gris and Lanvin-Castillo.

Pick one or more of these to go to and remember: Don't be in a hurry. On-the-rush Americans are the bane of French couturiers. Paris clothes are great partly because of line, partly because of the magnificent engineering that goes into them.

FITTINGS

Count on at least three or four major fittings, spaced about a week apart. There may be two additional minor fittings to finish off the details; these take an extra week or so.

Don't expect to attend the first showings of a big Paris collection. The semi-annual openings (about Jan. 31 to Feb. 7 for spring, about the end of July to Aug. 7 for fall) are mobbed by press and store buyers. The next several days, usually, are reserved for steady private customers.

Newcomers should wait about a week beyond this. Then, after the first fever has cooled, telephone the house to save yourself a needless trip. If you can't cope with the French telephone system, have the concierge at the hotel do it for you.

Most houses have two regular parades of mannequins a day—in the morning and mid-afternoon.

SPEAK ENGLISH

If you can't speak French, don't worry. At least half the sales personnel in all the top Paris houses speak English well or adequately.

Once you have decided on the outfit you want, you will have no further opinions except on the weather. Do not ask if the neckline can be dropped off the shoulders or if a turtleneck can be added to the skirt. This is taboo.

Any alterations of the line will be decided by your fitters. This is because you are buying an original creation from a great Paris designer. It is, in a way, a work of art, not just a dress. Above all, don't be overawed by the lush opulence of the great Paris couture houses. You, the private customer, will be served tactfully and discreetly, surrounded by clothes as lovely as you will ever see.

A delicious dish you simply must try!

I've learned how to save money"

"I have the Fulton National Bank transfer $30 from my checking account to my savings account every month on the 17th.

"It works out just swell. All I had to do was to sign a simple form which gave the bank the authority to transfer the money from my checking account on the date which I named. The bank takes care of it for me and it's no trouble at all.

"The bank sends me a receipt for the $30 in savings along with my cancelled checks and I take my savings book by the bank when convenient and have it brought up to date.

"It's amazing how fast you can save $300 to $400.

Take a tip from me, stop in at any of the Fulton National's ten convenient locations and start one of these automatic savings plans today."

The Automatic Savings Plan can be used with any type Fulton National checking or Savings Account, including Christmas Club. In addition to installment savings plans the "Friendly Fulton" also offers 2% and 2½% Savings Certificates in denominations of $100 or more, maturing in one and two years.

Skidding Market Declines $1 to $6

Loss Fixed at $3 Billion; Blamed on Senate Probe

By RADER WINGET

NEW YORK, March 8 (U.P.)—A huge wave of selling burst over the stock market today just before the close and pounded prices down relentlessly.

Losses were in the range of 1 to 6 points in just about every major division of the list.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell $3.10. When that yardstick is applied to the total listed value of all securities on the New York Stock Exchange—more than 171 million dollars—the loss for the day is an estimated three billion dollars.

The average closed at $158.60, not too far away from the historic peak of $162.60 established last Friday.

Brokers had a variety of explanations for the sudden burst of selling. Many leaned to the belief that the selloff was a natural development inasmuch as the market has been advancing steadily and attaining repeated new high marks in recent days.

The "trigger" for the sudden rush to sell, these brokers contended, could be found in Washington. Whether the Washington events forced the selling or merely provided an excuse for selling was a moot point.

In any event, it was pointed out that Senate Banking Committee under Senator Fulbright (D-Ark) had asked the Defense Department for full information on companies heavily engaged in defense work. Stocks of these companies have been highly favored by buyers at steadily advancing prices.

On Monday the prices of aircraft shares were weak, and today they led all the rest in the fall as traders and others unloaded their holdings.

Today the committee heard a Harvard economist—John K. Galbraith—say that the nation may be in the early stages of a boom-and-bust cycle that could end with a 1929-style crash.

LOWER AT OPENING

The market opened lower today, and within the first hour

16 Stocks In the Spotlight

NEW YORK, March 8 (U.P.)—Sales, closing price and net change of the 16 most active stocks today:

N Y Central	22.50	34 1/2
Bald Lima	21.90	15 1/2
Bell Air	21.90	29 1/2

There were three moderate selling waves that forced prices back. When that selling passed, prices tended to stabilize a slight distance above their lows. That state of affairs continued until the final 30 minutes of trading, when the selling really got going and prices dropped sharply.

When the final bell rang, trading was so heavy that the ticker was nine minutes behind in reporting the trend of business on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

The emergency system of "flash prices" was instituted when the ticker was five minutes behind. Prices of pivotal issues were flashed directly from the floor of the exchange to the tape.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks down $3.10 at $158.60 suffered its third largest break of the year.

ANOTHER BREAK

The first big break of the year came on Jan. 5 when margin requirements were raised to 60 per cent from 50 per cent. The average lost $3.40 that day. A second break, amounting to $3.50 in the average, came Jan. 17 when the market reached its lowest point of the year. Such breaks in the market haven't been experienced since the Korean war.

The industrial component of the average was off $4.10, railroads were down $3.60, and utilities lost 70 cents.

Atlanta Can't Hold Mere 'Status Quo'

By JIM MONTGOMERY

Atlanta has been described as many things, but it never has been called sleepy or lazy. And chances are it never will.

For Atlanta is a growing city—and has been recognized as such for many years.

As one of the nation's fastest expanding metropolitan areas, of course, it is subject to irregular and sudden changes not associated with a more static economy.

And 1954 was no exception.

Although it was a good year for Atlanta, the city could not escape some of the effects of the nation's year-long recession.

This was most apparent in employment, according to figures in the latest issue of the Atlanta Economic Review put out by the Atlanta Division's School of Business Administration.

Job insurance claimants here last year numbered 66,065, up more than 80 per cent over 1953.

New manufacturing plants were added to Atlanta's industrial scene last year, but average monthly manufacturing employment actually dipped one-tenth of 1 per cent to 78,746.

But Atlanta's growth was not to be denied.

Despite the general tightening up of the economy, employment here averaged 298,154 a month, nearly 2 per cent ahead of the previous year.

And although the average factory work week fell from 40.8 to 39.8 hours, the average weekly earnings of factory workers edged up 13 cents to $53.10.

The City of Atlanta issued fewer building permits last year than in 1953, but their value climbed 8.1 per cent to more than $87.5 million.

And average monthly construction employment in Atlanta jumped 12.4 per cent from 14,204 in 1953 to 15,791 last year.

In general, however, jobs were not as plentiful as in 1953.

The number of help wanted ads in The Atlanta Constitution and Journal dipped 27.9 per cent, from 110,777 in 1953 to 79,859 last year.

Other Atlanta area indices showed postal receipts up 12.3 per cent, department store stocks and sales up 6 per cent and 4 per cent, respectively, and second-class mail poundage up 5.3 per cent.

A 4.6 per cent gain was recorded in bank deposits and in the number of telephones in service, while bank deposits rose 4.2 per cent.

Thus, Atlanta certainly showed no signs of becoming static in 1954.

General Store Is Coming Back

In the early days of American marketing, the general merchandise store was just that. It was no more a grocery store than it was a hardware store. Then came the age of specialization—with one store devoted exclusively to food, another to hardware, etc.

Now the trend is being reversed. The big supermarkets are once again becoming general merchandise stores. Last year, for instance, about 5 per cent of their total volume was accounted for by housecleaning supplies, according to Chain Store Age magazine. And that doesn't include notions, toiletries, etc.

Business Failure Percentage Down

Although U. S. business failures rose to 939 in January, the highest in seven months, they actually declined in relation to the number of operating concerns, according to Dun & Bradstreet. The year opened with 41 casualties for each 10,000 enterprises listed by Dun, compared with a 43 to 10,000 ratio in December.

Spotlight on Ankles (Men's)

Watch it, mister, your socks are showing. At least they will be, if the spring fashion of shorter trousers for men wins any acceptance at all. Sock makers, hoping to boost their sales, will go all out to see that the male ankle is attired in the latest styles.

Cotton Closes Mostly Down

NEW YORK, March 8 (AP)—Cotton futures closed 5 cents a bale higher to 90 cents lower today.

Prices moved over a wide range in nervous dealings, although the sustained selling pressure of recent sessions was absent. The carryover of the brisk rally of Monday extended initial gains today to $1.80 a bale.

Further liquidation brought a quick reversal of this trend, but the decline in volume of trading slackened. In the final hour, a flurry of selling, in part credited to Memphis weakness and losses extended to more than $1 a bale.

However, prices snapped back somewhat near the close on trade buying and short covering.

Many traders took to the sidelines, pending some indication of stability following the sharp downward movement of the past week.

There was only one March transferable notice issued at New York, with the nearby March futures open position down 18,000 bales at the start today. Trading in that delivery expires on March 15.

NEW ORLEANS, March 8 (AP)—Cotton futures advanced early here Tuesday but gradually eased from the highs under renewed long liquidation and hedge selling. Closing prices were steady 20 cents to 55 cents a bale lower.

C&S Aims To Be Dixie's Top Bank

Directors of Georgia's largest bank moved Tuesday to make it—the Citizens & Southern National Bank—the largest in the Southeast.

At a meeting in Savannah, they recommended increasing the institution's capital and surplus from $17 million to $25 million.

'EAT BEFORE JUNE 1'

C&S President Mills B. Lane Jr. said he hoped this goal "will be made fact before June 1." He said the directors recommended:

1. Sale of 200,000 additional shares of common stock at $30 a share to raise $6 million in new money.

2. Transfer of money from undivided profits and contingency reserves to give the bank capital of $9 million and surplus of $16 million.

3. Raising the regular and extra dividends of the bank from an annual rate of $1.35 to $1.50.

Stockholders will be asked to vote for the recommendation at a special meeting April 12. They will then be issued the right giving them 30 days in which to subscribe to two new shares for every seven shares owned at that time.

LENDING LIMIT RAISE

An immediate effect of the capital increase will be to raise the bank's lending limit from $1.7 million to $2.5 million to any one customer.

Lane said this would put the C&S in a better position to serve the banking needs of local, regional and national business concerns operating in the Southeast.

The Atlanta banker then took a swing at Georgia's share tax. This method of taxation, he said, taxes banks on capital with no relation to earnings, and has been a restraining element in banking's growth.

Warning that banks need the capital capacity for present and future needs to assure industrial growth, Lane said he believed Georgia and the Southeast would benefit from a change to taxation on local property and earnings.

He said this is the method now used to tax other type businesses.

GROWTH DISPARITY

The C&S official observed that since 1934 bank deposits had increased seven times and loans six times, but capital only three times.

The new C&S capital increase will bring all capital accounts of the bank to over $30,000,000, he said, a gain of $13.8 million in 10 years.

He added that $5.3 million of the increase had come from retained earnings and the balance from new stock issues.

Robert Fulton Lovett was promoted to vice president and Thomas B. Glendinning to assistant cashier. Lovett will be in charge of the Liberty street office of the C&S in Savannah. Glendinning is located at the Southside office of the bank in Savannah.

ATLANTA BANK AWARD

The Northwest office of the bank in Atlanta was awarded the Mills B. Lane trophy for general excellence during the past year.

The C&S National Bank was founded in Savannah 68 years ago, and now has additional offices in Athens, Atlanta, Augusta, Macon and Valdosta.

It also has affiliate banks in Albany, Atlanta, Avondale, Buckhead, Dublin, East Point, Emory, LaGrange, Newnan and Thomaston.

Total deposits of the C&S National Bank at the end of 1954 were $38,000,000, largest in Georgia and 63rd in the nation. C&S affiliates had an additional $78,000,000 on deposit.

Nashville Banner Elects Veterans to Executive Posts

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 8 (AP)—James G. Stahlman, president and publisher of the Nashville Banner, announced today election of officers, all veteran members of the Banner organization.

Those elected included:

E. B. Stahlman Jr., executive vice president. A brother of the publisher, he has been executive director since 1941.

Charles Moss, vice president and executive editor. Moss, a Banner staffer for 30 years, has been executive editor since 1950.

Fred Russell, vice president. Russell, with the Banner 27 years, has been sports editor since 1930. He will continue as sports editor and will continue to write his daily column.

Senior Citizens' Club Opener Attracts 125

Atlanta's Senior Citizens Club got off to a lively start Tuesday as more than 125 young-at-heart Atlantans gathered for "information, entertainment and amusement."

The new club for mature men and women heard Ralph McGill, editor of The Atlanta Constitution, speak on India—a country he believes is a "key to your and my future."

Organized for people with time on their hands (their ages may range from 35 to 85), the Senior Citizens Club was hailed by McGill as "an excellent idea that has worked well in other cities."

BIG SUCCESS
The senior citizens themselves called the first meeting "a big success."

Sponsored by the Atlanta Public Library, the club will meet on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month in the library's assembly room. Charter members were welcomed by John Settlemayer, library director, who said: "This organization can grow from this large beginning to one of the most important groups in Atlanta."

Miss Eunice Coston of the library staff said the club will have this theme or slogan:

"Keep up with the world today."

HELPED ON PROGRAM

Miss Coston, who helped work out the organization's program, said educational films, book reviews, group discussions and speakers will be presented at future meetings. Club members were asked to let the library staff know what type they preferred.

Howard W. Askeew, 75, of 120 Glendale Ave., Decatur, who retired from Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Co. 10 years ago, said he believed the club had "a good start . . . and will build up as more people learn about it."

Athens Will Receive 1,200-Year-Old Urn

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP)—Evangelos C. Terzopoulos, Greek magazine publisher, has come here from Athens on a national tour, bearing a Grecian urn about 1,200 years old for presentation to the city of Athens, Ga.

Terzopoulos is publisher of a magazine called "Woman and the Home." His visit is being sponsored by the State Department through its international educational exchange program.

White Asks Quick Aim For Transit

Immediate adoption of transportation policy is essential for an evergrowing Atlanta, the Metropolitan Planning Commission chairman said Tuesday.

Robert H. White told members of the City Club that the central Atlanta area must be molded for the pedestrian to meet the expected growth by 1980.

White cited the concentration of business in the central area, while residential areas are moving more to outlying areas.

The commission chairman also urged reservation of future rights-of-way for loop highways to ease central area traffic congestion.

Robert C. Stuart, director of the commission, pointed out the importance of more efficient use of transit facilities. He said the Piedmont Limited is a forerunner of rapid transit downtown.

Stuart said one out of every three cars moving through the downtown area today has a destination other than downtown. He said expressways and loop highways should move these vehicles from the central area.

Johnston Named President by Young GOP Club

McCready Johnston, Atlanta attorney, has been elected president of the Fulton County Young Republican Club for 1955-56.

Johnston served last fall as campaign manager for Charles McCreary, who ran as a GOP candidate for Congress against Fifth District Rep. James C. Davis.

As the Young Republicans named Johnston president, they also elected Charles (Spikes) Brooks vice president, and Mrs. Mary Troutman second vice president. James A. Bentley of Palmto was named secretary, and R. R. McCall treasurer.

Johnston and Brooks were elected directors along with John Lundeen, J. M. Nichols and Alex Smith Jr.

Piedmont Park Policing Praised
The president of the Atlanta Council of Parent-Teacher Assns. Tuesday thanked the City of Atlanta for the way it is policing Piedmont Park.

Mrs. T. Courtland Sorrells said city administration leaders have decided more lights should be installed in the park and have promised closer police supervision.

The parent-teacher group and several churches urged closer supervision in the park after the Aldermanic Board passed an ordinance several months ago instructing policemen not to molest persons in parked cars if no laws were being violated.

Tough Tribesmen Hide Eloping Pair in Desert
DAMASCUS, Syria, March 8 (AP)—Two young eloping lovers hid in the Syrian desert today under protection of a band of hard-riding Bedouin tribesmen. The girl's father wants her returned to him, but authorities were fearful of provoking a fight with the rugged protectors.

Officials identified the couple as Nicole Therese Poche, 18, daughter of Rodolphe L. M. Poche, honorary Dutch consul at Aleppo, Syria, and Rida Yamlikha, 23, son of a retired Moslem judge, Zaki Yamlikha.

Nicole and Rida eloped two weeks ago from Beirut, Lebanon, where they were being educated. After being married by a Moslem sheik, they applied to the Aleppo Moslem sharia court to register the wedding and legalize it according to Syrian law. This permits a girl of 18 to marry without her parents' consent.

But Nicole's father filed suit to

East Point Housewife Dies in Wreck

An East Point woman was killed early Tuesday when the automobile she was driving went out of control and overturned on U.S. Highway 129, the State Patrol reported.

Mrs. Anita Claire Price, 23, of 211 Warren Way, East Point, was reported en route home after a weekend visit to Florida. The wreck occurred about four miles south of Lakeland, officers said.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday in the White Chapel Funeral Home, Montgomery, Ala. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery there.

Surviving are her husband, James Richard Price; a daughter, Donna Elaine Price; a son, James Richard Price; parents, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Fowler Sr. of East Point; a brother, John R. Fowler Jr. of East Point, and grandmothers, Mrs. W. L. Pugh and Mrs. J. C. Fowler, both of Montgomery, Ala.

Soviet Engineer Graduates Held Cold War Danger

Russia's colleges are turning out 43,000 engineers each year, while United States schools are producing only 24,000 annually, an Ohio University official warned Tuesday.

John B. Fullen, alumni secretary, said this situation, if unchecked, may cause the U.S. to lose the cold war.

Crises in Korea and Formosa are only "side issues," declared Fullen, who addressed a dinner meeting of the university's Atlanta alumni at Peachtree Alley.

"The next war will be fought in the markets of the world for the trade of the world. We must have trained engineers to keep our production high," Fullen said.

Harry James' Father Is Dead

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., March 8 (AP)—The man who taught Harry James how to blow a trumpet, his father, Everett James, 71, died last night at his son's ranch in nearby San Fernando Valley, it was disclosed today.

The elder James was a retired circus bandleader. He came here from Beaumont, Tex., where he made his home when not leading a circus band. The bandleader spent many years with the Haag Circus until his retirement.

James was a native of New Orleans. He is survived by his second wife, Alma, his son and four grandchildren. Funeral services will be held Thursday in Beverly Hills.

GRAND JURY PRESENTMENTS January-February Term, 1955

Honorable Ralph H. Pharr, Judge Fulton Superior Court

We, the Grand Jury for the January-February Term 1955 of the Fulton Superior Court, submit our presentments. We were charged that it was our duty to investigate various phases of government and public affairs in our county. We have conscientiously tried to fulfill this obligation.

The jury has operated most harmoniously. There have been differences in opinions, but the ultimate findings have been in almost unanimous agreement. Consideration was given to many matters, but we include in these presentments only those that we consider most important.

ATLANTA AIRPORT
A committee was formed at the first meeting of the Grand Jury for the purpose of investigating the operations of the Atlanta Airport. Considerable time was devoted to this investigation and many witnesses and documents were examined. As a result, the committee arrived at the following conclusions:

Operations—It is the opinion of the committee that the Atlanta Airport is operated efficiently, economically and safely, and is one of which every citizen in Georgia should be proud. Experts on the subject, operating and executive officers of the four airlines, declare the runways sufficient and well-kept, the temporary terminal adequate but not as elaborate as could be desired.

Maintenance—Buildings, runways, ramps, fences and lights are maintained at a satisfactory standard. A large portion of the airport facilities have been built and maintained with used material, resulting in large savings.

Management—It is felt that the operations at the airport have outgrown the present system and it is recommended that certain managerial changes be made to bring the system up to a 1955 basis. As a step in this direction, we recommend that Mr. John H. Gray, because of the magnitude of his duties, be relieved of matters in all leases, contracts, records, maintenance and other similar administrative duties so that he may devote his full time to airport promotion and administration of field operations. It is further recommended that Mr. Grady H. Ridgeway, assistant manager, be placed in charge of all duties that we are recommending that Mr. Gray be relieved of, and that he be directly accountable to the mayor, city airport committee, and/or the city controller. It is recommended that Mr. Roy L. Duggan, the bookkeeper at the airport, be taken out from under the direction and supervision of the airport management and placed under the direction and supervision of the city controller. It is recommended that the city comptroller, certified public accountant of city records, and Mr. Duggan devise some proper method of at least spot checking at the source the records of the lessees and concessionaires, from which source the city derived $382,430.55 during the year 1954. The audit specifications should include a requirement for at least a spot check at the source of records and a spot check of the occupancy by various tenants at the airport. Our findings show that checks are not being made by any city representative of the accounts and records of the lessees, and that these accounts have been handled on an honor system basis.

Contracts and Leases—It is the belief of this Grand Jury that where practical, leases should be made on the basis of competitive bids, rather than negotiation.

Monopoly Concessions—On the basis of monopoly concessions, the city is being deprived of revenue which they would otherwise enjoy if competition were allowed. A good example of this may be found in the U-Drive-It concession as it now exists. By adhering to this monopoly practice, a competitive U-Drive-It company was forced to conduct its operations outside of the city property, thus depriving the city of approximately $7,500 in revenue during 1954. A survey of seven large airports in the South revealed that it is practical to award leases on a bid and negotiation basis and certain concessions on a non-monopoly basis.

Personal Activities—In the course of our investigation, it was learned that the airport manager had contracted with a user air line to purchase surplus and obsolete aircraft parts for the sum of $20,000.00, for the purpose of resale. City property was used by the airport manager for the storage of these parts. It is recommended that the proper rental be immediately paid to the city for this space. The airport manager acknowledges that $2,000.00 is now due for such rental. We recommend that this amount or a proper amount be placed on books of record as an indebtedness of Mr. Gray. We further recommend that the airport manager and all other city airport employees be instructed to confine their activities at the airport to those that come within the scope of their city employment.

Fire Protection—In its investigation of fire protection, we of the committee found such diversity of opinion as to the adequacy of the present fire protection that we do not feel qualified to make presentments on this subject. We did, however, find that emergency gates have been made available to the neighboring fire departments at the east and west ends of the field, and at the instance of this committee, the airport management has agreed to install a similar emergency gate where Baxley Avenue dead ends into the airport fence.

It is recommended that the mayor and airport committee comply with these recommendations.

FULTON COUNTY JAIL
We have investigated the Fulton County Jail, and are in substantial agreement with the presentments of previous Grand Juries. The present building, while structurally sound, is obsolete and in a bad state of repair, in addition to being far too small to handle the load placed upon it. We believe that any extensive program of remodeling or modernization would do little to ease the situation. We, therefore, recommend that the commissioners proceed as soon as possible with plans, already announced, for selecting a site and erecting a new jail.

We strongly urge that such planning include a consideration of the possibility of abandoning the facilities of the Bellwood Prison Camp and disposing of the land now occupied by industrial users. Fulton County is now operating at the Bellwood site a laundry, a garage and machine shop, for repair and maintenance of machinery and road-building equipment; a hospital, providing medical and dental care for convicts assigned to the county by the State Board of Corrections; a Central Records office, which maintains records on prisoners as required by law; a sign painting shop; a dog pound, and a bloodhound kennel. It is our belief that these activities would be more efficiently conducted at a centralized location within the new jail structure or adjacent thereto.

The property now occupied by the Bellwood Camp, consisting of approximately 50 acres, is located in the heart of a rapidly growing and very desirable industrial community, and could be developed by the county for sale as industrial sites. It is estimated that the income from the sale of the land and the revenue in the form of taxes on new plants and warehouses which would be erected on the land would more than offset the loss to the county of the investment in buildings now located on the Bellwood property. Therefore, we strongly recommend that the commissioners make a thorough investigation to determine whether or not it would be to the financial advantage of the county to dispose of the Bellwood property.

GENERAL
It was noted that liquor is related directly to the vast majority of crimes of violence in our county. It is strongly recommended that our authorities move towards the closing of illicit liquor places and, at the same time, keep closer check on the licensed liquor stores. Furthermore, we strongly urge that no liquor license be issued to any person who has a criminal record.

It is most important that the selling of wine, beer and liquor to minors be stopped. We recommend that the license of any establishment found serving or selling intoxicants to minors be permanently revoked.

It seems to this jury that more severe punishment should be meted out to the habitual criminals. Light sentences appear to act merely as a license to "do business" again. As a former Grand Jury has said, our criminal laws should be strengthened so they will not "throw a cloak and a shield around the person on trial." Certainly, permitting a trial jury to pass sentence is not a sound practice. The judge with the defendant's record before him can be just, but at the same time be severe in the punishment of those who repeatedly defy the law.

During the course of this Grand Jury, Chief Jenkins of the Atlanta Police was invited to appear before us. He gave a general discussion on his department. The entire jury was impressed with his apparent ability and feel that he should be commended for the efficient and intelligent operation of the Police Department.

We had the opportunity of observing many of the law enforcement officers of both the city and county. Their personal appearance, knowledge of their work, and general behavior greatly impressed us and we consider them a credit to the community.

Appreciation is expressed to the Solicitor General and his staff for their co-operation and help.

PUBLICATION
We recommend the publication of these presentments in the Atlanta Constitution, The Atlanta Journal and the Fulton County Daily Report.

This 4th day of March, 1955.

U.S. Food Offer Hit By Albania

By CLIFTON DANIEL
New York Times News Service Special to The Atlanta Constitution

MOSCOW, March 8—Albania's Communist government has rejected "with contempt and disgust" President Eisenhower's offer of food for that country.

The President's statement that Albania is having food difficulties is "slander," said a declaration from Tirana published here today. The declaration, authorized by the government, was issued yesterday by the Albanian telegraph agency.

Tirana accused the United States of "flagrant interference" in Albania's affairs and said that Albania could not expect any aid "from American imperialism—its sworn enemy."

The statement charged that the United States wanted to "attack and occupy" Albania in the name of "liberation," had supported Greece's "insolent claim" to southern Albania, was plotting to "overthrow the people's regime," and preventing Albania from entering the United Nations.

Terming the offer of food another attempt to interfere in Albanian affairs, the statement said, "the Albanian people will not sell their freedom and sovereignty for dollars." The response of Albania, the statement declared, would be to increase its vigilance and strength.

Legion Post Hears Cocke
The Soviet Union is unlikely to commit itself to support of a Red Chinese invasion of Formosa, Eric Cocke Jr. told Atlanta Post No. 1, American Legion, Tuesday night.

And, the past national legion commander said, a Chinese invasion would fail without such Russian support, including jet planes and submarines.

"War is more likely to stem from Red China's refusal to heed Russian advice than from the Kremlin urging them to attack Formosa," Cocke said.

He spoke at dinner meeting commemorating the legion's 37th anniversary.

Tough Tribesmen Hide Eloping Pair in Desert
DAMASCUS, Syria, March 8 (AP)—Two young eloping lovers hid in the Syrian desert today under protection of a band of hard-riding Bedouin tribesmen. The girl's father wants her returned to him, but authorities were fearful of provoking a fight with the rugged protectors.

Officials identified the couple as Nicole Therese Poche, 18, daughter of Rodolphe L. M. Poche, honorary Dutch consul at Aleppo, Syria, and Rida Yamlikha, 23, son of a retired Moslem judge, Zaki Yamlikha.

Nicole and Rida eloped two weeks ago from Beirut, Lebanon, where they were being educated. After being married by a Moslem sheik, they applied to the Aleppo Moslem sharia court to register the wedding and legalize it according to Syrian law. This permits a girl of 18 to marry without her parents' consent.

But Nicole's father filed suit to

SYMBOL OF HOPE

FLOWERS express man's hope for everlasting peace. Their delicate beauty and fragrance shut out doubt and darkness by symbolizing the love we hold for those we've lost.

And, because we love, we grieve. But, because we have faith, we look forward to immortality. To our soul's unspoken question on these solemn occasions, flowers whisper comfortingly, "Hope!"

Because...like life...flowers flourish and fade. But there is something in their vital beauty that cannot wholly perish.

When you can't be there with those who grieve, Flowers-By-Wire carry your sympathy across the miles.

Look for the famous F.T.D. Mercury emblem. It identifies the right shop!

Unplanned Vacation Is Most Refreshing

Bill Allen, 58, is a friend of mine who heads a construction company in Indiana.

"Dr. Crane, I had the most enjoyable vacation in my life," he spoke reminiscently when I visited him recently.

"It all happened when a friend of mine from Henry County drove into my driveway about breakfast time on morning."

"I asked him how he happened to be there so early, and he said he was taking a vacation trip."

"When I asked where he was going, he told me he didn't know. Then he added: 'Pack your bag, Bill, and come along with me.'"

"Well, sir, the idea just appealed to me, so we started out together, headed west."

"During our trip of three weeks we visited Oklahoma and Texas."

"But we were as free as the birds and without any sense of strain. For we drifted along on the basis of whim, and never drove hard to reach any pre-determined destination."

"It was such a refreshing vacation for both of us, that we are going to repeat the idea next year, too."

"Since we both are business executives and loaded down with responsibilities, this kind of vacation was exactly what we needed, don't you agree?"

Yes, I thoroughly agreed with Bill and am recommending the same carefree plan to those of you who are dutiful, efficient housewives as well as business executives.

MARTHA VS. MARY
Most people don't think ahead very much, but there is a sizable minority that belong in the "Martha" category.

Perhaps you remember the Biblical story about Mary and Martha. Mary sat in the parlor, chatting with guests while Martha labored in the kitchen to get the meal ready.

Martha finally asked Jesus to order her sister out to the kitchen to help her. But Jesus urged Martha to relax and not become such a slave to the petty demands of her housework.

My personal sympathy, however, has always been with Martha, for the majority of mankind drift along thoughtlessly and often lazily, like Mary, while depending on some conscientious member of their family to do the chores.

But as a psychologist, I realize that people of the "Martha" type need consciously to cultivate a little of Bill Allen's carefree drifting, even if it be only for a holiday or weekend.

The bidding:
East 3 hearts 4 hearts 6 hearts Pass
South 3 hearts 4 hearts 6 hearts Pass
West Pass
North 6 clubs Pass

Opening lead: Two of hearts.
West, in today's hand, little realized that he had a trump trick against South's slam contract in spades. Unfortunately, however, the trick proved a millstone around his neck.

East, with forebodings of an impending landslide, attempted to impede the opposition with a bid of three hearts. With the cards stacked so effectively in the South hand, East's call proved to be but an empty gesture. South made an immediate cue bid in hearts, and North's response of six clubs is well chosen. Observe that North would have been obliged to bid five clubs even if his hand contained not even a face card. A distinction must, therefore, be made between such a hand and the one he actually held. "Reducing diets, properly balanced, should provide sufficient food and, by all means, do not cheat by nibbling even the tiniest bit of 'between-meals' food."—Health column quote.

"If you possess two loaves of bread . . . sell one." some ancient poet said . . . "and buy a flower to feed your soul!" . . . but folks prefer a buttered roll . . . a slice of cake or piece of pie . . . to any flower you can buy.

And that is why it is so hard . . . for fat folks to melt off the lard . . . they try to stay the appetite . . . taking "one more little bite" . . . they nibble on a candy bar . . . or fumble in the cookie jar . . . or prowl among the pantry shelves . . . and fool nobody but themselves.

It takes a lot of fortitude . . . to do without sufficient food . . . it makes good-natured people cross . . . and when they see there's little loss . . . of weight, by all this self-denial . . . they start to stealing, after while.

Old Cassius, in Shakespeare's book . . . who had that "lean and hungry look" . . . was charged with every form of sin . . . because he was so drawn and thin . . . but here is one man who believes . . . the fat ones are the biggest thieves.

Since there was no entry to dummy it appeared that his only hope of survival was to find the queen of diamonds doubleton in either hand. However, before committing himself to any line of play he drew a round of trump, and East failed to answer the call. South now realized that he had the hand won regardless of the location of the rest of the cards. He could force West to win a trump trick and in this way compel the enemy to put him back in the dummy.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE VAN DELLEN

Abdominal Disorders' Diagnosis Difficult

When a physician is consulted because of belching, distention, heartburn, nausea, or vomiting, the patient should not expect an immediate diagnosis.

The upper abdomen contains several organs (stomach, gall bladder, and part of the large intestine) and in addition, these symptoms often result from overfatigue, emotional upsets, or dietary indiscretions.

Now and then the type of abdominal distress is so characteristic, it seems like a waste of money to have X-rays.

In peptic ulcer, for example, gnawing or burning pain is located to the right of and above the navel.

Furthermore, it is related to food in that relief is noted after drinking milk or eating. Alkalis have the same effect because they counteract stomach acidity.

This sequence is an enlightening feature from the diagnostic standpoint but may prove treacherous, especially when discomfort is slight. If a man neglects to seek medical care because symptoms are eased by taking a bit of food or baking soda, he may run into complications with his ulcer.

Gall bladder discomfort usually is on the right side of the midline, beneath the ribs. It often is associated with sour eructations, gas, and flatulence and is related to food also except that it develops after eating instead of before as in ulcer.

Eating fatty dishes, cabbage, and pork are inclined to bring distress.

Gall bladder colic is much more painful and implies that a stone is moving. The episode is severe and agonizing; the victim squirms this way and that

In an effort to find a comfortable position.

Now and then pain radiates to the back so that it is just as annoying there as in front. It comes and goes like labor pains until the stone passes out of the duct.

The pancreas lies below the stomach and opens into the intestine at the same place as the tube that leads from the liver and gall bladder.

Pain from acute pancreatitis generally is sudden and excruciating, is felt in the region of the navel, and often extends into the back. Most victims are pale and the skin is cold and clammy.

A less violent and more chronic infection of this organ produces pain radiating to the back. The condition often is associated with weight loss and fermenting stools.

X-ray is not as helpful in diagnosis as are certain blood tests. Pancreatitis is serious because it is not as amenable to treatment as are other intestinal disorders.

How To Divide School Money?

By M. L. ST. JOHN

Some members of a legislative subcommittee think perhaps common schools are getting more than their share of Georgia's tax dollar. That will come as a shock to the Department of Education. Particularly will it be disturbing today, when the department goes before the State Problems Study Committee to outline needs for common schools.

The legislative group is studying the operations of the University System. It will make its recommendations after looking at all the colleges in the system. It has reached no definite conclusions other than that the Atlanta Division should be separated from the University of Georgia. However, comments from some of its members show they believe the money spent on education isn't divided properly between common schools and colleges.

Common schools get $101,090,000. Colleges get $12,000,000.

Colleges are in sad shape. Unable to get sufficient money from the state, they have to increase fees on the students. The rising fees prevent many high school graduates from going to college.

The title "state-supported" institutions of higher learning is losing its meaning, as colleges get more and more of their operating costs from students and other sources. Some legislators feel too many students are dropping out.

HIGHER SHARE
They believe common schools should have more money. They believe colleges should have more money. But whether more funds are coming or not, some of these legislators think the colleges should get a higher share of the state money spent on education.

The aggressiveness of the Department of Education and the relative timidity of the Board of Regents in seeking appropriations has contributed to the difference in money, some lawmakers think. The common school officials overlook no opportunity to beg and pressure for more money. The regents have been simply outlining the needs and leaving the matter to the discretion of the General Assembly. Recently, the regents adopted a different atti-

In a state where money is shy, there is the question: Does the state owe every boy and girl a common school education before it gives a college education to any of them?

DIVISION

Unless the state sends youths to college, it will produce no teachers for coming generations. How many, then, should it try to give a college education. It isn't offering it to all. Right now, Georgia boys and girls are being turned away for lack of room, in addition to the hundreds who can't apply because they can't afford the "state-supported" education.

The legislative subcommittee is looking at the problem primarily from the eyes of the colleges, because it is studying only colleges.

The State Problems Study Committee is to look into every phase of state government, including—or rather featuring—education at all levels. This study committee can determine whether the educational money is being divided properly between common schools and colleges.
